

McGinnies' Star Now in Ascendant

Speaker of Assembly Not Seeking Nomination for Governor But Dry Republicans Are Trying to Tag Him—No Shortage of Candidates.

Albany, April 30.—Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies, of Ripley, Chautauque county, is looming up stronger than ever as a possible choice of the Republican party as its gubernatorial candidate in the election this fall.

This is the opinion of friends of the presiding officer of the lower house of the Legislature as expressed at the Capitol today.

The fact that Speaker McGinnies was in Washington and conferred with United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., and also had an audience with President Coolidge, is looked upon by his friends as having greatly helped his candidacy.

So far as the speaker is concerned he has never announced himself as a candidate and it is not believed he ever will. But should the Republican party want him to make the race for the governorship, he will be glad to respond. At least that is what his friends are saying.

McGinnies would be very acceptable to the dry element in the Republican party. At the last session of the Legislature he steadfastly refused to permit the Assembly rules committee to report the Republican bill providing for a referendum at this fall's election on whether congress should be asked to modify the Volstead law.

Some of the dries in the Republican party have even gone so far as to talk about drafting Speaker McGinnies as the dry candidate for United States senator to oppose Wadsworth in the primaries. But McGinnies let it be known that under no consideration would he be a candidate for any public office of any individual group in the G. O. P.

One thing is certain, even at this early date, and that is the Republican party will not be short of candidates for governor. There are at least half a dozen who are working hard to win the nomination.

There are some prominent members of the Republican party who believe that the final choice of the next state convention will fall on Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York. It is said that many of the G. O. P. leaders believe that the next Republican standard bearer should come from the vicinity of Greater New York, rather than from up-state.

$80,800 Theatre Bonds Are Sold

Effort Will Continue to Sell in Small Amounts So as to Distribute the Ownership of the Theatre as Widely as Possible.

With a total of $80,800 sold, salesmen who are selling gold debenture bonds of the Kingston Theatre Corporation went out after their dinner and conference last evening to sell some more and close the intensive sales campaign today. With more than half of the bonds sold and the beginning of work on the new theatre assured, whatever is left unsold this evening will be sold by Mr. Lazarus, Mr. Reben and a few others who will complete the work in a few days.

They will continue to solicit small subscriptions in the effort to have the bonds distributed as widely as possible and in this way have the ownership of the theatre, and the consequent profits on the common stock go to the greatest possible number of persons. The ownership is vested in the common stock, which is not for sale, but is given as a bonus, one share with every $200 invested in the seven per cent bonds. The shares in the ownership, which costs nothing, will be a permanent investment and its earning power will increase as the bonds are retired.

In the event that enough small sales to make up the $110,000 cannot be made, the bonds will be offered in larger lots to men who have already subscribed and have said "Come back if you need more money."

WIFE DENIES SHE TOOK PART IN ROBBERIES

New York, April 30.—Pretty Mrs. Mary Westbrook, 13, charged with furnishing a score of Brooklyn apartments with her husband, was under arrest today, awaiting possible identification by her alleged victims.

Jack E. Perry, her husband, is said by police to have told how he had robbed houses while the occupants were eating dinner. Perry is an ex-convict released recently from Massachusetts State Prison, according to police.

Mrs. Westbrook denies she took part in the robberies.

National Ballroom Race. Little Rock, Ark., April 30.—Nine free ballroom races, which took off here at five minute intervals last evening, were rescheduled today following a brisk rainstorm. However, over Southern Illinois and Indiana, according to advice received here by officials of the contest.

Dies After Eating Oysters

Washington, April 30.—An investigation was launched by naval authorities and public health officials today into the mysterious illness that attacked a group of warrant officers after they had dined in a popular capital restaurant, causing the death of one and the serious illness of two of his companions.

The dead man is Kenneth M. Smith, a chief pharmacist, Chief Carpenter E. B. Berkstesser and Chief Boatwain James C. Legg are seriously ill.

This trio, with Pay Clerk Charles Anderson, Boston Navy Yard, Chief Machinist E. B. Abel, Hampton Roads, and Chief Electrician H. H. Blevis, New York, went to the restaurant after appearing as witnesses before a congressional committee. Oysters comprised the bulk of their meal. The three taken ill ate fried oysters, the others ate them raw. Those who ate the fried oysters became ill, the others were unaffected, indicating that the trouble was not with the food itself but with its preparation.

Baltimore Will Get Whittemore

Banton Will Waive New York's Rights to Try Bandit and Consent to Have Him Extradited to Maryland, Where They Say Case is Unbeatable.

New York, April 30.—Richard Reese Whittemore, New York city and Baltimore bandit, will be taken to Baltimore to be tried for the slaying of a prison guard there during his escape from the penitentiary.

While Whittemore, back in his old cell in the Tombs, was gloating over his cheating the electric chair at his recent murder trial in Buffalo, District Attorney Joab H. Banton, of New York city, announced today he would waive New York's rights to try the bandit for robbery here and consent to have him extradited to Maryland.

Banton made his announcement following a telephone conference today between himself and State's Attorney Herbert Y. O'Connor of Baltimore.

Banton said the Baltimore prosecutor had convinced him that the Maryland case against Whittemore was "unbeatable." The New York district attorney said that requisition papers from Governor Ritchie of Maryland, were already on their way here and that he would send them to Governor Smith immediately they were received with the recommendation that they be acted on favorably.

Besides Banton, Police Inspector John J. Coughlin, Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and Richard C. Murphy, counsel for the National Crime Prevention Bureau of the Jewelers' Association, talked over the telephone with O'Connor. These officials also were "sold" as to the strength of the Baltimore case against the bandit.

GLORIA VANDERBILT COMES INTO FORTUNE

New York, April 30.—Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt, two year old daughter of the late Reginald C. Vanderbilt, has come into a fortune of $2,300,000 through the filing by her guardian, former United States Attorney General George W. Wickersham, in the surrogate's court of a bond for that amount.

Guardian Wickersham was compelled to file this large bond, which was furnished by the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company before he could take possession of the ill-fated securities representing the infant's fortune.

Arthur Hazenbush, Jr., the boy soprano who delighted a large audience at Newburgh recently, will sing at Epworth Hall Wednesday evening, May 5, when the Good Will Society will give a humorous play entitled "Rumagee Devotions." The public is cordially invited to attend and hear this boy singer.

Robert Complaints Dismissed

Albany, April 30.—The Public Service Commission yesterday closed on its records the matter of the complaint of residents of the village of Hobart, Delaware county, against the New York State Gas & Electric Corporation, as to prices charged for electricity, subject to being reopened in the future on request of the complainants. The commission was informed that negotiations were under way for adjustment of the matters complained of.

Murdered His Mother

Quebec, April 30.—Found guilty of murdering his seventy-two-year-old mother, Eugene Blau, of this city, was in jail here today awaiting sentence. Blau strangled his mother to death last November. His conviction ended the first murder trial in Quebec City in the past three years.

Andrews Will Go to England

Where He Will Negotiate a New Anti-Liquor Smuggling Agreement With Great Britain—Basic Features Agreed Upon.

Washington, April 30.—General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of prohibition enforcement, will sail for England on May 22 to negotiate a new anti-liquor smuggling agreement with Great Britain, it was announced here today.

Announcement of General Andrews' forthcoming departure confirms the exclusive story of negotiations for this agreement carried on April 16 by International News Service.

Andrews will be accompanied by Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the U. S. coast guard, and William H. Vallance, assistant solicitor of the state department.

Basic features of the agreement are understood to have already been agreed upon.

Under the pact, American coast guard cutters would be permitted to enter British West Indies possessions in quest of rum runners, or information as to liquor smuggling.

The British and American governments will cooperate in the interchange of information relative to the movement of criminals. Officials explained that a successful termination of the negotiations will mean that the British government will prosecute ship operators for violation of clearance papers.

Many liquor ships clear from Great Britain with papers showing the Bahamas, Cuba or Canada as their destination. In reality they lie off the coast of the United States until able to land cargoes of liquor. Information concerning these violations of clearance papers would be submitted to the British government which under the agreement would enter proceedings against the ship masters.

Andrews' schedule calls for a visit to London only, although it is possible he may go to the continent. Treasury officials are anxious to negotiate similar treaties with Germany and other countries which export big quantities of liquor.

BETTY'S SUIT AGAINST SAMUELSON SETTLED

London, April 30.—Having furnished one of those court dramas that the British love so well, Betty Blythe, American film star, today settled her case against G. B. Samuelson, British film producer, out of court.

Betty sued Samuelson for salary and expenses which she alleged were due her for her work on the Samuelson production of Sir Rider Haggard's "She."

For ten days the Kings Bench Division of the law courts has been crowded and jammed and Betty has been the cynosure of all eyes.

Early in the case Betty testified that while her histrionic ability might be limited to one achievement which she claimed was the ability to wear clothes, and she set out to prove it by appearing in court each day in attractive costumes of the latest fashion. British women fought for the privilege of seeing the film star, and British men scrambled for seats in the court room.

FIRST DUTCH CHURCH HELD ANNUAL ELECTION

The annual meeting of the congregation of the First Dutch Church was held Thursday evening, and was one of the most largely attended in years. Dr. Myron J. Michael and Dr. E. H. Loughran were elected elders, and Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Harry S. Ensign were elected deacons. The newly elected officers will be installed at the services the first Sunday in June. The reports of the officers of the church showed that it had closed the year in a most satisfactory condition, spiritually and financially.

PANCHO VILLA'S BROTHER DIES BEFORE FIRING SQUAD

Mexico City, April 30.—Hippolito Villa, brother of the famous Pancho and with something of a record of his own accord, has gone to death before a firing squad in Durango, according to reports here.

Hippolito is reported to have been charged with a train robbery of five years ago and to have been convicted and sentenced to death.

During recent weeks there have been charges that Hippolito was plotting against the Calles government, seeking to bring together the remnants of the Dela Huerta and Villa factions.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR VETERANS MEET TONIGHT

There will be a special meeting of the Spanish-American War Veterans at the state armory this evening at 8 o'clock to arrange for the funeral services of James S. Barber, a member of the organization. All former comrades of the deceased whether members of the local organization or not are invited to be present.

James S. Barber Dies at His Home

Was Employed Continuously by The Freeman Forty-seven Years—A Drumm Major. He Headed All Parades for Drafted Men Who Went to World War, and When They Returned—Veteran of Spanish-American War.

James S. Barber, for forty-seven years a valued employee of The Freeman, died at ten o'clock Thursday night at his home, No. 63 West Union street, aged 75 years. He had been ill one week.

Mr. Barber came to Kingston in 1876 from Catskill, where he had been employed by The Catskill Recorder, and entered the employ of The Kingston Journal, which was then owned and edited by the late William H. Romeyn and which later was purchased by The Freeman and now forms part of The Kingston Semi-Weekly Freeman and Journal. He remained with The Journal until 1879 when he came with The Freeman, which had bought The Journal, and served continuously with the newspaper until the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, when he went to Honolulu with Company M.

During the time that Company M was in service the columns of The Freeman were enlivened with breezy letters from the pen of Mr. Barber, describing the adventures and misadventures of the members of Company M while at Camp Black where they went from Kingston and were in camp for some time before being sent to Honolulu, and in the other places where the company was camped.

Mr. Barber on the return of Company M from overseas resumed his position as linotype operator with The Freeman, and after a few years was transferred to the editorial department as proof reader. An exceptionally fine speller, there were few words in daily use that would "stump him." His command of the English language was also excellent and he made one of the best proof readers in the Hudson river valley.

When the first linotype was installed by The Freeman, more than 50 years ago, Mr. Barber was selected to operate it and he became the first linotype operator in Kingston.

During the time that he served with Company M he never lost his interest in military affairs and during the World War and the entrance of this country into the conflict he headed as drum major every parade of the drafted men as they left Kingston for training camp. It was his ambition to "lead them all away with a smile and he bore with him a heavy but the house was filled with smoke.

Taber-McCoy Title. While the family of Richard Schantz of No. 35 Durnbacher street were away for the evening, Thursday, neighbors discovered smoke in the house and sent in a still alarm to the fire department.

An excited neighbor had set fire to the Southern. Neighbors had the fire about extinguished when the firemen arrived. Damage by fire was not heavy but the house was filled with smoke.

Taber-McCoy Title. New York, April 30.—The pocket billiard field was without a champion today as the result of the action of billiard wheels declining Frank Thorndike's title because he had failed to defend it within a period of a year. A new champion will not be available until next fall when a championship tournament will be held.

Registered Mail Pouches Stolen

Chicago, April 30.—From the office of Chief Postal Inspector Grant B. Miller came word today that two pouches of registered mail, valued at $100,000, were stolen from the platform of the Big Four station at Lafayette, Ind., last Friday morning.

News of the robbery was kept secret, Miller said, pending efforts of postal inspectors to locate the missing pouches. So far, they have failed, he said. The news leaked out when axes in the postal secret service began arriving from all sections of the middle west to take part in the investigation.

The pouches contained $54,000 in securities consigned by the National Fowler Bank of Lafayette, to the Fletcher National Bank at Indianapolis, together with $15,000 consigned to individuals. The robbery was discovered when the Fowler Bank became worried over not receiving a receipt. The shipment was traced to the station platform, and there the record of handling ends.

Federal Agents on Saugerties Road

Visit Green Shingle Inn Near Lake Katrine and Arrest Three Men Charged With Possessing and Selling Liquor—Hearing Fixed for Wednesday.

The Green Shingle Inn on the Saugerties road near Lake Katrine, in the town of Ulster, was visited by federal agents Thursday evening. Agent McCay arrested Joseph Burza, Louis Maurillo and Marion Naporkowski charged with possessing and selling liquor and lodged them in the county jail over night. This morning they were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Connelly and after they had demanded an examination they were placed under $1,000 bond and were committed to the county jail pending their furnishing the bond. The examination was adjourned until Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Joseph Burza and Louis Maurillo claimed they resided at Schenectady and that they were not connected with the inn in any way except that they were guests at the time the federal agents visited the place. Federal Agent McCay stated they had visited the place that evening and along about 11 o'clock the place began to liven up. There were drinks served, a player piano furnished music and there were girls in the place. He charges the sale and possession of liquor.

One of the guests who gave his occupation as a cook and sinking waiter, said he had only been at the place a short time and had come to make repairs there.

DRIVE TO CURB THE SALE OF SMALL ARMS

Washington, April 30.—The National Crime Commission has taken steps to curb the indiscriminate sale and use of small arms and ammunition.

F. Trubee Davidson, of New York, chairman, announced that efforts would be made to secure favorable action from state legislatures next year on uniform pistol regulation laws.

"The national crime commission cannot ignore the indiscriminate possession of small arms as a factor in crimes of violence, and perhaps it is well to make this a special study in view of the general feeling that something should be done to disarm the gunmen," he said.

Small arms manufacturers will aid in the campaign, Davidson said.

Van Swearingen Upset Again

Washington, April 30.—Another step backward in the Van Swearingen Brothers' ambitious project to promote the Billion Dollar Nickel Plate Railroad Merger was seen here today when the Interstate Commerce Commission vacated and set aside its order of January 22, 1925, permitting O. P. and M. J. Van Swearingen, Otto Miller, J. Ernest J. H. Natt, C. I. Bradley and W. A. Colston to hold directorships of the C. & O. line, while holding similar directorships in the Nickel Plate System.

Vanderbilt Revives Offers. New York, April 30.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who has encountered financial difficulties in the management of his string of three tabloid newspapers, has been offered five propositions, it was revealed today. One of them, his attorney, J. Edgar Field Malone, said was an offer to purchase one of the papers for $2,000,000.

Seamster Rained by Torpedo Boat. London, April 30. Several persons were seriously injured and many others were pushed into the water when a passenger steamer carrying 150 people was rammed by an Italian torpedo boat, a Central news dispatch from Venice said today. No deaths were reported.

Edith Theatrical Producer

New York, April 30.—Three bandits armed with blackjacks held up Gustave McCue, theatrical producer, in his room in the Hotel Ansonia, today beat him and bound him with his neckties and escaped with $2,000 in jewelry and $25 in cash.

Associates Honor Alexander Speers

Well Known Insurance Agent Presented With Handsome Ring at Testimonial Dinner Upon His Retirement from Active Service.

The Advance Restaurant, Wall street, was the scene of a very happy occasion Thursday evening, the event being a testimonial banquet given Alexander Speers by his associates of the local city force of the Prudential Insurance Company of America and by the members of the Boosters Club. At 6:30 o'clock about 19 of the company employees sat down to enjoy a most excellent dinner prepared especially for the occasion by Caterer Von Berg of The Advance and all did justice to the menu served. The tables were artistically decorated with cut flowers.

Among the invited guests were Superintendent W. Alexander of the Kingston district, Edward O'Sullivan of the House office, Newark, N. J., Mrs. Alex. Speers, and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Speers, and the clerks of the Kingston office. During the banquet a delightful musical program of popular selections was given by the Empire orchestra of four instrumentalists.

The dinner began after an invocation delivered by A. E. Fronefield, Mr. Speers, who has been employed by the company for the past twenty-seven years, has been retired under a pension and Superintendent Alexander made a congratulatory address to which Mr. Speers replied. Other congratulatory addresses were made by Inspector O'Sullivan of Newark, N. J., Assistant Superintendents C. D. Myers, D. N. Turner, E. E. Wiberg, J. Silverman, also by A. E. Fronefield, H. Cox, P. T. Murphy, Frank Burger and C. Freer. An original poem was read by Ed Schultz.

After the serving of the banquet P. T. Murphy, president of the Boosters' Club in behalf of the members of the club in a few well-chosen remarks presented Mr. Speers with a gold ring set with amethysts, and told of the high esteem he had always been held by his co-workers. Mr. Speers followed expressing his surprise at the gift of the magnificent ring which he said he would always retain as a keepsake and hold it as a remembrance of the pleasant days spent during the past twenty-seven years as a representative of the Prudential, and spoke of the very pleasant associations with the agents and other representatives. The event of the evening he would always hold in memory as one of the brightest occasions of his life. He thanked the Boosters' Club and all for the remembrance and for the enjoyable banquet. Superintendent Alexander also spoke extending again congratulations to the guest of honor.

One of the guests who gave his occupation as a cook and sinking waiter, said he had only been at the place a short time and had come to make repairs there.

Fred Perry of East Kingston is the owner of Green Shingle Inn.

Despatches From Foreign Parts

Madrid, April 30.—A professor of the University of Salamanca has been banished to the Chafarinas Islands, and six students imprisoned for two weeks, as a result of a demonstration against the government order forbidding the teaching of Greek at the university, according to an official announcement today.

Leningrad, April 30.—Eight bodies have been recovered from the Ocha River, where fifty persons were drowned yesterday when a temporary bridge over the river collapsed, due to the floods.

Berlin, April 30.—Count Johann Von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, has been appointed German delegate to the League of Nations disarmament conference to be held on May 18.

Peking, April 30.—The Chinese Army is no place for a man who is squeamish. Troop trains are now equipped with two cars for ammunition and two cars for coffins. No effort is made to hide the coffins from the soldiers going forth to battle on the trains.

Paris, April 30.—Supporting his campaign to "keep radio programs clean," Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, has permitted the installation of microphones in Notre Dame Cathedral for the broadcasting of sermons.

Madrid, April 30.—Labarta, a porter on the Saragosa docks, is the carrying race champion of Spain. Labarta won a 100 and a half race, carrying a load of 220 pounds on his back, in the remarkable time of twenty-seven minutes.

GOVERNOR SMITH IS GREATLY IMPROVED

Albany, N. Y., April 30.—Governor Al Smith, who was forced to cut short his vacation at Abasco, N. J., and return to the Executive Mansion because of neuritis in his left shoulder, was much improved today.

The governor is not expected back at his desk in the Capitol until next week. He was feeling so much better yesterday afternoon that he had his secretary, George H. Graves, bring some legislative bills to the mansion so he could act upon them.

WEIGH OLD MOTHER EARTH IN NEW TESTS AT WASHINGTON

Lengthy Undertaking Will Not Be Completed for Another Year and a Half.

Washington—Old Mother Earth, who has been tipping the scientific scales for many years at round six thousand million million tons—six followed by twenty-one ciphers—is having her weight more accurately determined for posterity, but it is a lengthy undertaking and will not be completed for at least another year and a half.

The recent adoption by large oil companies of the instrument known as the torsion balance for finding oil deposits has brought to light the progress being made here in experiments with the same instrument to weigh the entire earth.

For three years Dr. Paul R. Heyl has been carrying on the patience-testing test in a small room thirty-five feet underground, at the bureau of standards. He has, on some occasions, held himself in one position there for more than nine hours at a time, so as not to disturb the sway of his delicate instrument. His sub-surface retreat was chosen to avoid interference by surface forces.

Thus far only one of three sets of observations has been completed, the second Doctor Heyl expects to finish by June, while the third will take another six months. Since mathematical computations are far behind the observations, it probably will be another year after the third observation is finished before a final figure is reached.

The weight of the earth is looked upon by Doctor Heyl as only a side issue in his experiment. For thirty years prior to the start of his work the law of gravitation had not been investigated, and what he mainly is seeking is another decimal for the 6.66 Newtonian constant, a numerical quantity used in determining the force of attraction between two given bodies.

When this figure, which has been tentatively found now to be 6.658, and others, is discovered with a greater degree of precision, a mathematical computation is expected by the scientist to reveal this long-hidden secret of the earth.

Doctor Heyl believes the earth is constantly gaining weight through the fall of meteors, but this increase is relatively so slight that it will not affect his experiments.

Expect New Serum to Cut Pneumonia Deaths

Chester, Pa.—The discovery of a serum which, it is believed, will reduce the mortality rate of pneumonia to one-half was made by Prof. Frank Hinton, medical director of the Mifflin research laboratories at Glenside.

"The discovery of Professor Hinton ranks with one of the most important in modern medical annals," said Dr. H. L. Reese of the experimental department of the Glenside laboratories.

"It will save the lives of practically half of those who are afflicted with pneumonia, which has proved so deadly in this country."

"In one of the large New York hospitals," Doctor Reese said, "two wards were set aside for pneumonia patients. In one of the wards the patients received the orthodox medical treatment for the disease. The other ward used the newly discovered serum. It was then discovered that in the ward where the serum was used the deaths resulting from the disease were cut in half."

Evening service at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Van Brauer of Phoenix, spent a few days recently with Mrs. Neal Hotaling and family.

Tracing the "Limerick"

Limericks were usually extemporaneous compositions and produced an emotional response in the reader by each individual in turn, while the entire party joined in reading a poem in which some of the words, "Limerick" came up to Limerick. From this it is supposed that the word "limerick" originated in a special type of poem, a limerick.

Trimming Worn on New Sport Styles

Elaboration Introduced According to Use Garment Is to Be Given.

With the exception of the practical sports costume which is worn for tennis or any other strenuous sport and which continues to adhere to strictly plain tailored lines and is devoid of all adornment, practically all sports costumes demonstrate the significance of trimming as an important style factor, says a fashion writer in the Cleveland News.

Now that so many varieties of costumes are placed in the category of sportswear, elaboration is introduced in a model according to the formality or informality of its character.

The handmade silk sports frock invariably is diversified with drawn-work (which, by the way, is receiving the endorsement of many exclusive houses), hand-tucking, and hemstitching.

The yachting costume of jersey or flannel relies on piping, gilt braid, contrasting bindings, and perhaps a trim embroidered monogram-motif on the breast pocket of its coat or jumper.

The sports frock, which is suitable for wear at tea and informal dancing parties, is represented in many types and fabrics, and employs an unlimited choice of trimming, chief among which are colorful painting, embroidery, novel effects in wool and occasionally lace.

Brilliant effects are achieved with modernistic and plastic printing, Russian embroidery, and hand-blocked designs. In some of the frocks which are cut with very wide sleeves and usually are interpreted in heavy silk crepe in a pastel shade or white, stinging window designs, or conventionalized floral or fruit patterns are executed in vivid purples, rose, greens and blues on the sleeve section alone. Further to enhance the color appeal the sleeve, when it is permitted to hang unconfined in wide kimono effect, is lined with the dominant color of the design.

Plated trills are widely indorsed as jabots, collars and cuffs, and even in an occasional skirt ruffle, careful, however, to be so placed as not to detract from the slender, tailored sports silhouette.

Crocheted wool in novel stitches makes very smart banding for jumper borders and to outline cuffs, chemise panels and collars.

Leather, both suede and glace, is particularly important in pocket, cuff and collar trimming or swaggy motor and traveling coats, as well as in short-coat suits and tailored jumper frocks, the latter developed of tweed, tulle or flannel.

Smocking is resented consistently in many of the jersey frocks of peasant inspiration, and in those brilliant wool embroidery in floral or cross-stitch effects also is sponsored enthusiastically.

Handling of Taffeta in Building New Gown

The handling of crepe and chiffon for all types has been so successful that some are likely to dread the important handling of taffeta. With the right kind of relief in folds, fullness and tucks taffeta is bound to be well liked. But taffeta can make the fairest gown in the world. Its surface is not to be begun with, and something must be done in the handling of it to give it depth and sheen. And especially must it be employed carefully for the large woman: for, while she is going to wear it because it is such a "prestige" material, she can do little to disguise about it not making her look larger. It will do that very thing unless the making of it is perfect—and then it will increase the size.

Cheats for Children

A small cheat proven a very handy article in the children's room. It is especially like an average for boys and girls, for it is low and easy for a child to use. Then, too, it is an extraordinary and can be moved about the room to the most convenient spot.

ONE MORAL YARDSTICK

Some of the prohibition testimony at Washington has been of a sort to confirm the observer trained to the belief that everybody should be measured by the same moral yardstick. There was that representative of the National Grange, for example, who admitted that under the Volstead act farmers are allowed to make cider and wine for themselves—although these in time acquire a staggering alcoholic content—but, while regarding this as an inalienable right of agriculturists, expressed the firm belief that the city man's immoral practice of making beer or wine for home consumption should be sternly suppressed. Then there was the disclosure that a certain number of Congressmen have been in the habit of accepting pay from the Anti-Saloon League for eloquence in favor of the Volstead act, these indignantly protesting that the practice was perfectly innocent, because the "fees" were for speeches on prohibition, not inside, but outside the walls of Congress. Obviously this explanation overlooks the fact that they could not accept pay for saying one thing outside and then be free to say the opposite inside, and that therefore the appropriation of their eloquence was quite complete.

No doubt the Anti-Saloon League so understood the transaction and considers both that and all its other transactions as highly honorable, on the principle that whatever is done by or for the League is eminently proper for the simple reason that it is done by or for the League. All is fair in war and the end justifies the means—if the war is the League's and the means are of its choosing. But naturally the outside observer is inclined to think that the same moral measurements should apply on both sides to the controversy.

FEWER FARMERS.

According to the Federal Department of Agriculture's estimate the farm population of the United States was 479,000 less at the end of 1925 than at the end of the previous year, and this decrease in farm residents is noticeable in every part of the country. It was only 1.2 per cent in New England, which had relatively few farmers left, but was as high as 3.9 per cent in the Rocky Mountain region, which has widely felt the effect of the agricultural depression. Taking a favorable view of the general situation nevertheless, the Toledo Blade says:

American agriculture can afford at this time to experience a lessening of population, though the departure of thousands of the families for the cities has been the sequel of financial ruin and discouragement. Farm production has been too much and for that reason prices of farm products have been too low for the farmers. What the industry needs today is a better balance of production and consumption, the elimination of uneconomic practices, the cleaning up of debts and the right to feel that good crops will mean prosperity and not, as they frequently have, returns below the cost of seed, cultivation and labor.

This is in line with the comments of those economists who seem to imply that small sales and large profits are the proper thing and that bumper crops are disastrous. But if farmers continue to decrease in number while the consuming population continues to increase, what then? Inevitably the time is coming when we must have more farmers, or greater food production, not less.

When local politicians are unable to draw public utility companies into politics over rate questions which are under the jurisdiction of the state public service commission, they periodically attempt to discredit the commission. Practically every state has witnessed examples of this kind. The average public utility or railroad commission is today rendering decisions which in some instances are a part with court rulings, from the standpoint of the shrewd and conservative utility owner.

It takes a whole lot of nerve for a state railroad or utility commission to head down a decision based upon fact, which is contrary to public local pressure that is brought against him. To the credit of the credit of the commission, however, many decisions of this nature have been rendered within the past few years and the public has gradually come to see that rate making is a business question and not a political one. The fact is the two can be separated, the better it is for the people.

Attempts to drag state commissions into politics simply show how far the proponents of such measures are out of touch with the public thought on this question. The commission public and the investor would much rather trust a duly constituted commission to give them in time, than they would be left at the mercy of the local politician whose principal aim may be to stir up a campaign issue to secure votes.

POISON FROM AUTOMOBILE EXHAUST.

We are all familiar with the fumes containing a chemical substance for putting out fires. Many motorists are carrying them now in addition to having one in the garage.

The day is not far distant when the authorities will insist upon garages having a tank of oxygen 95 per cent and carbon dioxide 50 per cent, to use in cases of poisoning from the exhaust fumes of automobiles.

The number of deaths by this poisonous gas, carbon monoxide, is increasing at an alarming rate.

One writer has stated frankly that it is perhaps difficult to prevent some of the intentions that come to us, but there is really no excuse for poisoning by this gas. He presents figures which show that carbon monoxide poisoning from fumes, automobile exhaust and manufactured gas, carries off more people now than smallpox.

The newspapers reported recently the deaths of a family of three, because the engine of a truck had been left running in the garage beneath their apartment. The chauffeur was arrested for manslaughter because he had neglected to open the windows of the garage as instructed.

Open doors, or windows, or a good ventilating system will prevent the trouble.

However, where the individual had been found unconscious, in addition to the ordinary artificial respiration methods, the use of this tank with the oxygen and carbon dioxide is now saving many lives. Oxygen has the power of displacing the poisonous gas in the blood which has been actually preventing the blood from taking more oxygen into itself. By putting oxygen in a pure concentrated form into the blood, in sufficient quantities, the effects of this can be overcome. The idea behind the use of the carbon dioxide, in combination with the oxygen, is most interesting. It is based on the fact that this gas, which in itself is also a poison, acts upon the breathing nerve centers in the brain, and they send down impulses to the lungs which make them work harder, and thus they get in more oxygen. It is not unusual for a motorist to decide to adjust something about the engine when he gets into the garage, but by neglecting to keep the doors or windows open, he positively poisons his blood. The effects may be only a slight headache or nausea, but they are warning signs. Very often the unfortunate victim is overcome before he can reach the door or window.

It is a new danger, but fortunately it is getting publicity and this gas tank method of restoring victims will be valuable indeed.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

General Washington Inaugurated First President of the United States, April 30, 1789.

As early as July 2, 1788, the Continental Congress had been notified that the necessary approval of nine states had been obtained for the Constitution, but not until September 12 was a day appointed for the choice of electors of president. That day was the first Wednesday of the following January, while the beginning of the proceedings under the new Constitution was postponed until the first Wednesday of March, which chanced in that year to fall on the 4th.

New York City had been selected as the residence of the National Government. The City Hall, in Wall Street, was fitted up for the use of the National Legislature.

March 4 was ushered in by the ringing of bells and booming of cannons. The members of Congress were delayed in their journeys to the capital, owing to the wretched condition of the roads, on the opening day only a few of them were present.

It was April 6 before a quorum assembled, when the two houses proceeded to count the votes for president and vice president, and General George Washington, having received every vote from the ten states that took part in the election, was declared president of the United States. Washington received the official notification of his election at Mount Vernon on April 14, and two days later started for New York.

Reaching the capital on the 23rd, after a continuous journey through Alexandria, Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and Trenton, General Washington was met at Elizabethtown, N. J., by a committee of Congress, and from his port he was conveyed in a barge to foot of Wall Street, where he was met by Governor George Clinton, the municipal authorities, and a vast concourse of citizens, who formed a procession and escorted him to the mansion prepared for his residence. That evening the whole town was illuminated.

John Adams had been installed in the chair of the Senate, as vice president, on April 21, but Congress could not prepare for the inauguration of the president until April 30. At noon of that day, after religious services had been held in the churches in the city, Washington left the presidential mansion, escorted by a procession formed of members of Congress, and heads of departments in carriages, led by the City Cavalry, and proceeded to the City Hall, where, in its street gallery in the presence of a vast multitude of people, the inaugural ceremonies were performed. The oath of office was administered by Robert R. Livingston, the first chancellor of the State of New York.

Returning to the Senate Chamber, the president read his inaugural address, after which the whole assembly went on foot to St. Paul's Chapel, on Broadway, where prayers were read by the chaplain of the Senate. The president was then escorted to his mansion. The ceremonies of the day were concluded by a display of fireworks in the evening.

In his appointment of Thomas Jefferson, of Virginia, as secretary of state; Alexander Hamilton, of New York, as secretary of the Treasury; and Henry Knox, of Massachusetts, as secretary of war, the president gave clear indication at the outset that no sectional interests or prejudices were to control or shape his policy.

General Schuyler, John Jay and Alexander Hamilton were the chief leaders of the Federal party in New York, and had sufficient influence with President Washington that he was induced to bestow Federal patronage upon men who were either personally or politically opposed to Governor Clinton. Jay was appointed chief justice of the United States; James Duane, judge of the district of New York; Richard Harrison, United States attorney; and William S. Smith, United States marshal.

Soon after his inauguration President Washington had a severe illness, and for some days his life was thought to be in danger. Confined to his bed for six weeks, it was more than three months before he was restored, when he entered upon the duties and the labors of his office.

President Washington made a tour of the New England States, and in March 1791, set out on a tour of the Southern States, making the journey of 1,887 miles with one set of horses, returning to Philadelphia, July 6, 1791.

Washington was unanimously re-elected, but John Adams was re-elected vice president by a majority of twenty-seven votes over Governor Clinton, of New York.

Bishop Shipman At Holy Cross

The Rt. Rev. Herbert Shipman, D. D., Suffragan Bishop of the diocese of New York will administer the sacrament of Confirmation at Holy Cross Church at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon to a large class of children. A retreat for the candidates will be given Saturday, beginning at 10 a. m., conducted by Father Mabry, the rector of the parish.

Not Fiction

Nina Wilcox Putnam, as a fiction writer, loves to relate the marital tribulations of others, but as Mrs. R. J. Sanderson, she had her own real troubles, she testified, winning a divorce in West Palm Beach, Fla. This was her second divorce from Sanderson, the first, in Rhode Island, being self aside.

O. & W. WOULD SUBSTITUTE BUS FOR TRAIN SERVICE

Albany, April 30.—The New York, Ontario & Western Railway Company has petitioned the Public Service Commission for permission to discontinue operation of passenger trains between Port Jervis and Valley Falls, substituting a bus service. The petition of the railroad alleges that few passengers are carried and that the passenger revenue of the two trains operated is small, causing a loss of about $15,000 a year. The railroad proposes an arrangement with Walter Francisco, operator of a bus line between Middletown and Port Jervis, whereby the railroad's passengers from Port Jervis to Valley Falls and from Valley Falls to Port Jervis will be carried on the bus line. The bus will operate on substantially the same schedules as the trains have operated on, and the petition says that patrons will be caused no inconvenience.

Why Rain Water Is Best
Ordinary rain water contains appreciable amounts of dissolved oxygen, nitrogen, ammonia and carbonic acid gas, and in special cases it is found to contain nitric acid, sulphuric acid and other compounds of the impure air of cities. The acid and alkaline impurities increase the power of the rain water to dissolve the mineral constituents of the earth's crust, the gases which it provides for plants and animals to live in rivers and ponds which could not support life if the water were chemically pure.

THE BABY PLAY

This is not a story for babies, in spite of its title. It is something that really happened in a big school, and it was something for older boys and girls, though it was called the Baby Play.

The children were all making some money for a number of things they wanted in school, and the teachers were going to help them.

So the teachers said they would give the freshmen.

First of all they would give a fine party, and every one would come and there would be refreshments and all.

The parents of the children would come, too, and there would be a slight charge for admission.

Then would be the Baby Play. They called it that so no one would know just what it was going to be.

But it was a wonderful idea. And everyone agreed that it was.

They had made everyone curious about seeing what it would be, so that there was a wonderful attendance, and there had been just enough hints going around so that there were some ideas about it and yet they did not know that it would be actually what they thought it would be.

It was a huge success.

They had pictures shown upon a screen after the party and the refreshments were over, and these pictures showed all the teachers as different ages when they were babies and when they were little children.

Their names were flashed upon the screen first and then the pictures.

For example, Miss F., the history teacher, was shown as a baby, and as a little girl of two and as a girl of nine, when she first recited in school.

And before these pictures were shown they announced upon the screen what they were going to be.

Oh, how cunning Miss F. looked when she was two. She wore such a quaint little dress, and she had golden curls and dimples in her cheeks, and when she was nine she looked as though she were all dressed up nicely for her speech, but as though she had quite a bit of temper and could get into scrapes, too!

Then there was the geography teacher in the funniest little hat and coat you ever did see, and she was putting, too.

And if anything the geography teacher disliked their doing it was to put!

Then there were not only the teachers who taught special subjects to the higher classes, but there were those who taught everything.

It made everyone feel quite different toward everyone else.

The pupils all felt what good sports the teachers had been to show their baby pictures in order to help along the school.

They also had the feeling of knowing that their teachers had been children once with their same problems and struggles and pleasures.

And as the teachers looked at themselves and at each other as they had been they began thinking of themselves as children again and remembered when they had been naughty and what they had done, and they began to feel a new understanding toward their pupils.

Not only did it greatly help the school's fund, and not only were the parents vastly entertained and reminded of their own school days and of the clothes they had worn and things they had done, but the pupils and teachers felt an entirely new sympathy toward each other.

To have seen their teacher in pigtails, wearing puffy sleeves, with a naughty expression on her face and to see that, back of the stern look she often gave them now, there were little traces of that little girl in the pigtails, wearing the puffy sleeves and with the naughty expression on her face—well, it just made all the difference in the world.

The entertainment was a great success—made doubly so because it was not just a success as far as raising money was concerned—but it helped the very spirit and comradeship of the whole school.

His Question

"A partner says here in the paper that we are getting with our youth," remarked Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading.

"Does he tell how we get on up at the end of the year?" asked Cap Johnson of her partner.

Staff Belated to Hoffman Brewery Claimed by John Conforti, Who Says It Was For Automobile Radiators—Others Who Were Arrested Discharged.

John Conforti, who gave his address as 51 Hone street, was held in $500 bail to appear in New York city before the Federal authorities when he admitted before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connelly that the alleged alcohol, whiskey and gin found in the old abandoned Hoffman brewery on Wednesday, April 21, by Federal Agent McCay was his property. Peter Fusa, caretaker of the brewery; John Hoffman of 2 Russell street; Frank Plank of 51 Hone street and Joseph Borbo of 139 Spring street, who were arrested at the time of the raid were all discharged by Commissioner Connelly when Conforti claimed the ownership of the stuff seized. John M. Cashin appeared for all of the men except Peter Fusa, who was represented by Frank W. Brooks.

Federal Agent McCay stated that he had entered the old Hoffman brewery street armed with a search warrant and had found on the premises, 55 gallons of alcohol, 10 gallons of whiskey and 20 bottles of gin. Conforti stated that the alcohol was his property and that it was denatured alcohol used for automobile radiators. Samples taken by the Federal Agents at the time for analysis are now being examined and no report has yet been received as to the content.

Special Grand Jury at Chicago

State's Attorney Crowe's Family Is Threatened By Gangsters—Special Grand Jury Called For Monday To Investigate Murders.

Chicago, April 30.—Following a declaration of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe that gangsters have "threatened to kidnap and kill the children of the state's attorney and bomb his home," Judge William J. Brothers today called a special grand jury for 2 p. m. Monday to investigate Cook county gang murders.

The state's attorney's statement regarding threats against him was contained in a petition to Judge Brothers asking that the special grand jury be called on the ground that a public emergency exists.

Crowe's petition and the action of Judge Brothers came immediately on the heels of the appointment of all detective bureau squad leaders—Fifteen lieutenants and forty-five sergeants—as deputy sheriffs with authority to make raids and arrests anywhere in Cook county.

Appointment of the detective bureau officers as deputy sheriffs took place in the office of Deputy Chief of Detectives John Stege.

"It means," Stege said, "that Cook county is going to be made unsafe for gangsters and hoodlums."

The coroner's jury, composed of leading Chicago business men, yesterday viewed the bodies of McSwiggin and the victims of Tuesday night, and adjourned the special inquiry into the slayings until tomorrow morning.

Coroner Wolf announced today, however, that at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the jury will again be convened to start a general probe of gangs, bootlegging and politics, and their relation to each other in the numerous gang slayings.

The overnight developments in the situation brought further evidence, police declare, to prove that Myles and "Klondike" O'Donnell were with McSwiggin, James Doherty, beer runner, and Thomas Duffy, saloonkeeper and politician, when they were killed.

Myles O'Donnell's hat, bullet-riddled, was found near the scene of the killings. A pool of blood was found in the back yard at the O'Donnell home, and a train of blood led across the rear porch and into the house. Police are confident that one, and possibly both, of the O'Donnells were wounded.

The search for these men, together with Bernard O'Donnell and John Hanley, as well as Al "Scarface" Capone, continues. Ralph Capone and his wife Peggy, were to be arraigned today before Judge Brothers on writs of habeas corpus. They were arrested when police went to their apartment while hunting "Scarface."

Demand is growing for a special grand jury and a special prosecutor, following the declaration of Harry E. Crowe, because of his political affiliations, is "unfit" to prosecute the probe.

came in contact with him. Mr. Barber was a man who always took an interest in his work and he never missed a day from his desk in the proof reading department unless confined to his home by illness.

Besides his wife he is survived by two daughters, Mabel, wife of Alfred David of New York city, and Marjorie, wife of Charles Kochendorfer of Brooklyn, and one sister, Mrs. Emma Baldwin, widow of Henry D. Baldwin of this city.

The funeral will take place from his late residence at 8:45 o'clock Monday morning and at 9:30 o'clock from St. Mary's Church with a solemn Mass of requiem for the repose of his soul. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery and he will be buried with military honors.

Mr. Barber was a member of the local military organization practically from the time he came to Kingston until recent years. After the War with Spain, he was familiarly and affectionately called "The Colonel" by his associates and by hundreds of other Kingstonians.

For many years Mr. Barber preserved several newspaper clippings in his desk at The Freeman office, and their condition shows that he had handled and re-read them many times.

One of the clippings was from an old newspaper, and he was especially fond of it. The clipping is a reprint of a poem—a newspaper waif—and to some of his newspaper associates it was known that he regarded it with tender affection because he had been a printer, before becoming associated with the editorial staff as proof-reader. "I want that printed as my obituary when I am dead," he said several years ago to the editor, a request that was several times rendered, the last time only a few months ago. To appreciate the poem, it should be explained that in newspaper parlance, the term "thirty" means the last piece of "copy" to be set, or the last proof to be read; at the end of a newspaper article it signifies "the end," just as in the telegrapher's parlance it signifies "no more" and "good night."

The poem is as follows:

He's taken "thirty" off the hook;
It's quitting time for Jim;
We've closed the shop this afternoon
And read the proof on him.

And find it pretty muddling clean,
A pl line here and there,
But only such a one as apt to slip
In anywhere.

His ticket's on the foreman's desk,
All figured up, I s'pose,
He had some fat "takes" and
Some lean, but that's the way
It goes;

I don't know what's his overtime or
What his check will be,
I guess he'll strike the average,
Along with you and me.

He set a measure muddling wide—he Liked to set that way;
His work was mostly solid stuff,
And not much on display;

He lived three score of years, a Friend of yours and mine,
It's tough to think some worthless chap is quading out his line.

He told me nigh a month ago, as cool
as anything,
His dupes were out and pasted up
—a muddling longish string.

He said he'd never skinned the shop,
and guessed he'd have his share.
Of overtime and double price,
and maybe some to spare.

He set a proof that showed up clean,
and did his work up right,
He never slurred by day so he could double-space the night.

The make-up's dumped his matter in, his form is closed you see;
His galley's empty on the rack,
his slug is twenty-three.

We don't know what the cashier's check will have to give to Jim;
We'll mark a turn rule on the proof and say a prayer for him.

For him the dawn is in the east, it's getting light uptown,
And thirty's taken off the hook,
the last form's going down.

The other clipping was also from a newspaper, a verse from the Bible, as follows:

"The days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years,
yet is their strength labor and sorrow,
for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

Resinol heals stubborn sores on baby's head

Hair now fluffy and silky

West Springfield, Mass., Oct. 9: "My baby's head was covered with sores. I took him to several doctors and tried various remedies, but nothing did him any good until I heard of Resinol Ointment and decided to try it. In no time at all his scalp was smooth, his hair grew out silky and fluffy and he never had any more trouble." (Signed) Mrs. H. J. Scharrer, Hayes Ave., via, Chicago, Mass.

PRIZES OF GAME OF MAP HUNTING

Sport Is Equal in Interest to Solving of Cross-Word Puzzles.

Washington.—Equal in interest to crossword puzzles is the game of map hunting. The by-product of crossword puzzles is an increased vocabulary. The by-product of map hunting is a vocabulary of words from a score or more of ancient and modern languages, and a fresh point of view of geography.

Problems may be selected from the map of the day or from the map itself. Right now Chinese armies are fighting for possession of Peking. The question is what does Peking mean to the Chinese?

Liquidated from Peking are places named Nanyuan and Pelyuan. The syllable "pe" or "pei" is a familiar one in Chinese names. So is "nan." Everyone will think of Nanking. Further inspection of the map shows that Peking bears the same relation to Nanking, as Nanyuan does to Pelyuan; that is, the "pe" is north and the "nan" is south. When we remember from history that Nanking was one of the favorite capitals of China, the puzzle is solved; Peking means the north capital and Nanking means the south capital.

The Puzzle of Three "D's."

"Not only Chinese words but Russian, Spanish, Arabic and words of many other languages also, may be learned as readily by exploring expeditions on a map," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society's headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"As a grade school pupil in geography, everyone had to learn the major rivers of Europe. What satisfaction when Russia finally was reached, for there ran the rivers of the three D's: the Dniester, Dnieper and the Don! They were easy. Yet the repetition of the 'D' should have aroused suspicion. An adult intellect can see that there is something wrong between the 'D' and the 'n' of the first two names.

"Throughout the desert regions of northeast Africa and into Arabia, the map explorer is confronted with the term 'Bir' before names indicating small places: Bir Garrah in Egypt, Bir Soluk in Cyrenaica, Bir el-Melouah on the Damascus-Bagdad post route. 'Bir' makes one think of a famous Biblical name, Beersheba. In the desert a community exists either where there is running water to make a pool or a well to supply water by bucket. Running water is so rare in the desert that it is generally marked by a large community, an oasis, and therefore, 'bir' probably is Arabic for well.

"Indeed Beersheba confirms this. Sheba's wells were seen. They supply water to thirsty travelers today even as they did to Abraham and Sarah. In Beersheba Jacob robbed Esau of his birthright and to the crossroads of the 'birs' came Elijah fleeing from the original Jezebel. On the limestone walls of the wells are deep lines worn by thousands upon thousands of ropes, a mute history of the venerable place.

"Before leaving this section of the map one should learn easily that a 'wady' is a stream bed, dry most of the year. Another Arabic word which now frequently pops into the daily news is 'Jebel.' The Jebel or Gebel Druses who are troubling the French Syria are the 'Mountain Druses. Jebel marks many mountain ranges in Africa and 'Jeb' appears beside single peaks. At the other end of the Mediterranean is Gebel-el-Tarik—now Gibraltar.

"Your seasoned map explorer never trusts spelling. He trusts sounds far more. He will hear a similarity between 'wady' and the first syllable of Guadalquivir. The 'wady-al-Kebir,' the great river, is just as much a memorial to the Arabic invasion of Spain as the hills of Granada, Guadalquivir, in Mexico, is an Arabic 'wady' name that shipped to the New World on a Spanish conquistador's galleon.

The "Great Great River."

"One of the favorite lessons of the geography classroom is that Yangtze River is a gross error. Since 'liang' means 'great river,' the poor Chinaman struggling with English would be a trifle confused to hear an American say what would sound to his ears 'Yangtze great river river.' The same precautions must be taken with 'ho' meaning a river not so great, like the Hwangki Ho.

"A similar situation is suspected in India when one discovers numerous 'ganges' as labels for streams in Ceylon. Ganges is not far different from 'ganga' and both mean river, so Ganges rightfully should stand alone like the 'Don' of Russia and the 'Aron' in England. Aron is an old Celtic word for river.

"To the map hunter duplication of syllables is a hint to secure common geographic fact. He will discover that the 'pore' of Singapore and the 'por' of Rangoon, India, both mean city. In China he will find the provinces of Kiang Si, Shan Si and Kwang Si. It is apparent that the provinces are far inferior. Since the main population is on the coast, the Chinese must have referred to that tier of provinces on the west coast, where the Americans do the most work, as 'interior' provinces, not another map puzzle, for it is Chinese for 'west.'

MARLBOROUGH.

Marlborough, April 29.—Mrs. I. D. DuBois is visiting relatives in Esopus.

Miss Mabel spent the week end in New York city.

Mrs. Cecelia Walsh of Newburgh spent the week end with her nephew, John Weerner.

Mrs. Owen Connor of Highland spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Newell.

Mrs. and Mrs. Gerow Griffin of Leightonville and Miss Ella Mack spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Fowler.

The Misses Mary and Sarah Newell spent Saturday with friends in Newburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lasher spent the week end with Mrs. Lasher's mother, Mrs. Palmatier, of Hyde Park.

Mrs. L. F. Gaffney and daughter, Anna, and Loren Abrams of New Paltz visited Mrs. Gaffney's mother, Mrs. Anna Hannan, on Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Bodner entertained friends from New Paltz on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Albersom and Mr. Conway of Jones Point visited James Albersom on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cole have returned after being out of town for a week.

After considerable trouble in getting the equipment moved, the pit driver belonging to the Saengerstein contractor, was set upon the site of the New Hudson Valley Refractory Company's new storage and plant on the Marlborough dock road on Saturday and started to work.

They are making slower progress than they had expected on and instead of putting down 25 or 30 a day, but 24 piles were driven the first two days. It is now apparent that the refractory company is going to be a big thing for Marlborough.

Not only is it to store fuel, and some many thousands the extra pile and expense of shipping to New York, but also storage plants, but it will also manufacture artificial ice on a big scale. The new company will not content itself with the business of being cars and handling part of the local ice trade but will go into the production of ice for outside markets as well as making car lot shipments to New York and other nearby cities. It will have every facility for operating in the most economical manner. It has purchased 14 acres of land from the holding of Mrs. E. E. Wygant on the south side of the road and on both sides of Old Man's Kill, the stream that runs through Marlborough village. This gives it all the water rights including the waterfall into the ravine.

Francis Bloomer of Marlborough, daughter of Joseph Bloomer, was the winner of the first prize for her essay written in the County W. C. T. U. contest, at the institute held in Plattsburgh on Wednesday. She took the highest honors in fourth grade class. Her papers will now be submitted in the state contest.

A special drive for Catholic Charity began last week and the local Catholics are taking an active part. The official opening was made Sunday, April 12.

The students of M. H. S. presented their play "The First Year" Friday night to a packed house. Many tickets were sold in advance, assuring the students a profitable adventure.

Fred Kaifu of the Bedford Branch T. M. C. A. of Brookhollow has again won the individual championship in the international T. M. C. A. basketball from 115 competitors representing 71 associations in 25 states and six Canadian provinces. Fred is a former Marlborough boy and well known here.

A group of Marlborough young people, who contemplate the production of a play before summer, gathered Saturday evening to plan their cost and other arrangements. They may organize a regular group of local players.

A wedding of special interest to the younger set of Marlborough took place on Monday evening, April 12, when Miss Margarette Lynn became the bride of James Jennings. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Cranston of Newburgh. Miss Nellie Tuthill and Elmer Jennings, a brother of the groom, were attendants. After the ceremony in Newburgh a reception to relatives and a few friends was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Jennings is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lynn and is well known in the community especially as a pianist in the young people's orchestra, which has been so popular this winter. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings and employed by the New York Traprock Company at Cedar Cliff.

Word was received Wednesday by the officials of the Marlborough Presbyterian Church, that the Rev. Matthew Corvill, who was scheduled to preach Sunday morning, had been taken suddenly ill with an acute attack of appendicitis. He was rushed at once to the hospital and operated upon. The Rev. J. D. Piper filled the Marlborough pulpit on Sunday morning.

Mr. Corvill is a student at Princeton Seminary. He was to appear as a candidate. He was heard by the

The Proposed Broadway Theatre As A Business Proposition

The money-making opportunity for a large modern theatre on Broadway is so unusually good that were we, the people of Kingston and Ulster County, to neglect it at this time, it would be the inviting of chain theatre operators to locate here, to capitalize on this opportunity.

My plan is to have local people share in the profits of a fine big modern playhouse, and to bring here the best of productions, such as we want to see.

Let us go about this job quickly and have a theatre that will be a Kingston proposition. We can own it, operate it, and divide the profits.

A $200 seven per cent debenture bond gives you one share of common stock which should earn over $14 each year.

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDID

By Arthur Scott Bailey

KITTY DID!

AS THE hours sped by and the moon at last crossed the sky and dropped out of sight, Kiddy Katydid saw that there was going to be trouble.

He was worried about Benjamin Bat. Early in the evening Benjamin had begun to amuse Mr. Frog. And he was so busy doing that that he wouldn't take the time to go away and snatch even a bite to eat.

Naturally, Benjamin's temper grew worse as the night lengthened. And Kiddy Katydid had to admit to himself that he would be most unwise if he did any jumping or flying just then. For Benjamin Bat was in so fierce a humor that he was ready to snap at anybody who was smaller than he.

The Cat Lay Motionless Along a Limb.

was. All the tiny flying folk gave him a wide berth. And it began to look as if he were going to spoil the night's fun.

But all the while Mr. Frog never once lost his temper. Even when Benjamin Bat called him a long-legged, flat-headed, paddle-footed meddler, Mr. Frog only smiled and turned a few somersaults backward.

"What's the matter with you?" Benjamin Bat asked him at last. "Can't you speak?"

"Certainly! Certainly!" Mr. Frog said then. "I've been trying to think of some way to prevent so much quarreling. It hardly seems fair to Kiddy Katydid—this uproar in his dooryard. And since you are the one that's making the greatest disturbance, I'd suggest that you go away and leave us to enjoy the rest of the night in peace."

"I'll do nothing of the kind!" Benjamin Bat screamed. "This is my party. I thought of it in the first place. And I'm going to stay here until dawn."

"Very well! Then the rest of us will leave at once," Mr. Frog told him. And calling good-by to all his friends, Mr. Frog hopped himself briskly away. The smaller folk, too, vanished as if by magic. Though Benjamin Bat watched sharply, he didn't even see Freddie Firefly when he slipped away.

"That's strange!" thought Benjamin. "He must have put out his light, to fool me. But I don't care, because Kiddy Katydid is hidden somewhere in this tree. And I'm going to find him—for I'm terribly hungry."

So Benjamin began flying in and out among the maple branches. Nobody but he could have twisted and turned in such a helter-skelter fashion. It made Kiddy Katydid almost dizzy just to watch him. But Kiddy didn't take his eyes off Benjamin, because he intended to jump—and jump fast and far—in case Benjamin should spy him.

Now, although the Bat family was able to see in the dark as well as Farmer Green's cat could, Benjamin failed to find Kiddy Katydid anywhere. Crouching motionless upon a leaf, and dressed all in green Kiddy Katydid was almost invisible. But if he had moved the least bit, Benjamin Bat would have found him out.

Looking only for a tiny green figure among the green leaves, Benjamin Bat paid no attention to the grayish branches of the tree. He was really strangely careless. Quite unsuspected by him, while he was wrangling with Mr. Frog, the cat had crept out of the woodshed and stolen softly into that very tree, where she lay motionless along a limb. She had come out upon an early morning hunt for birds.

She was a fierce old cat. There was nothing, almost, that she wasn't ready and willing to fight. Even old dog Spot had learned to shun her. And now she waited patiently until Benjamin Bat should come within reach of her quick paws.

That stupid, blundering fellow bumped squarely into her at last. And how he escaped is still a mystery. The old cat always claimed that when she found Benjamin wasn't a bird she was so surprised that she let him go. And as for Benjamin himself, he never would discuss his adventure with anybody. Kiddy Katydid was the only other one who saw what happened. But he was so frightened at the time that he only knew that Benjamin Bat tore away toward the swamp as if a thousand cats were following him. And people do say that for some time afterward, Kiddy Katydid shrilled a slightly different ditty. It was "Kitty did, Kitty did; she did, she did!"

But when Mr. Frog mentioned that news, with a laugh, to Benjamin Bat, over in the swamp, Benjamin only said, "Stuff and nonsense!" Yet he looked most uncomfortable.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

LOVE SUPERSTITION

ONE of the various superstitions regarding love matters which is common in the rural districts of this and many other countries consists in divining by the dodder plant, a golden threadlike parasite which grows abundantly upon bushes. Take the dodder and, whirling it three times around your head, throw it on a bush. If it lives your love is returned; if it dies the reverse is the case. For so many centuries has the dodder been used by the superstitious for this purpose that its common name has become "Love Vine."

Its real and ancient name, dodder, is derived from a Teutonic word meaning like the yolk of an egg—yellowish, and connecting it up with the yellow light of the sun. Ancient myths and folk-tale tales show that the conception of the man as a tree and the woman as the clinging vine was as familiar a symbol to early man as it is to us as a modern metaphor.

Mr. Caveman was an observing person—his wits were sharpened by his constant struggle to escape annihilation; observation of minutiae and drawing of deductions therefrom was one of his strong points. He saw the dodder clinging to the bush as the tree clings to the oak. He saw that the dodder was yellow like the light of the sun, like the yolk of an egg. The egg contained the germ of life, the sunlight was a mystic, vivifying force from the sun god. In his mind-up of things material and things spiritual he concluded therefore that the dodder must possess mystic qualities which rendered it most appropriate for working magic with regard to love affairs. And he passed the idea onto his superstitious descendants.

DANCE! PITMAN HALL FRIDAY NIGHT

Admission—Free

The Hotel Stenographer

910a Fulton

"YOU certainly have a good memory," complimented the House Detective.

"I've a good forgetter, too, Kelly," remarked the Hotel Stenographer. "If I hadn't a good forgetter there wouldn't be much in life for a poor but pretty working girl like me."

"When some nice boy takes my hand and looks into my blue eyes and tells me that he never knew what the nice girl was until that first night he danced with me, and that I made all the rest of 'em look like selling-platers. I forget the other boys who held the same hand, looked into the same blue eyes and said the same thing, but who are now rushing around with some of those same selling-platers."

"When I stand in front of a big store and see a million dollars' worth of fur and lingerie and imagine myself wearing all of 'em at the same time and stepping into a five-thousand dollar 'Home Jaws' I forget that the time I spend there should be used at home to wash out the silk stockings I wore to the dance last night so I can dry them on the radiator in time to wear them to another one tonight."

"When I watch the heroine in a 'movie' and imagine I am she, bathing at Palm Beach in the winter and skiing in Norway all summer, I forget that if I make thirty bucks a week with this typewriter and manage to get a few clothes after I have paid my mother room and board I am a right lucky girl."

"When I think about getting married to some nice guy and having a bungalow in the suburbs with my own car, flower garden, police dog, own chickens and a few of my own kids, I forget the poor fish head of my girl friends have married, who have to huddle from early morn to dewy eve to pay the rent on the Fourth Ave. walk-up flat."

"Women are good forgetters, Kelly. Even now I am forgetting the letters that traveling man left for me to do which I ought to be at this minute."

61 PEAKS IN U.S. RISE 14,000 FEET

Colorado Has 47, California 13 and Washington 1.

San Francisco.—The recent re-examination of numerous high peaks by the United States geographic board has disclosed that there are sixty-one peaks in this country more than 14,000 feet high. Of these forty-seven are in Colorado, thirteen in California and one in Washington.

The Sierra club, a nationally known organization, recommended some fifty names—corrections and additions—of high places in the country's mountains, and many of these have been accepted as official.

The data compiled by the Sierra club has brought out some interesting facts.

California, which has the highest peak, Mount Whitney, 14,501 feet, also has the lowest place, Death valley, 280 feet below sea level.

In California there are more than sixty unnamed peaks, rising above 13,000 feet, according to the United States geological survey. There are also fifty named peaks towering more than 13,000 feet.

California Peaks More Rugged
The mountains of Colorado are more rounded in conformation and much easier to climb than those of California, which are spirelike and contain more perpetual small glaciers.

The state of Washington's one peak of extreme height—Mount Rainier, 14,408 feet—is claimed by mountaineers to be the most dominating and beautiful of all.

The United States geological survey and the United States coast and geodetic survey give the ten highest summits of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, with their altitudes as follows: Mount Whitney, California, 14,501; Mount Elbert, Colorado, 14,420; Mount Rainier, Washington, 14,408; Mount Massive, Colorado, 14,404; Mount Harvard, Colorado, 14,399; Mount Williamson, California, 14,384; Blanca peak, Colorado, 14,383; Gray's peak, Colorado, 14,341; Torreya's peak, Colorado, 14,336; and La Plata peak, Colorado, 14,332.

Many Remain to Be Conquered
The height of these mountains does not mean that they are the most difficult of ascent, for there are some in California of much lower altitude that have not been conquered. Only a year ago Norman Clyde, an intrepid climber of the Sierra club reached the summits of two peaks more than 13,000 feet high to the south of Mount Whitney. His suggestion was accepted by the government that they be named Mount Mallory and Mount Irvine in honor of the two members of the last Mount Everest expedition, who lost their lives in June, 1924.

Most of the mountain peaks in this country have been named for surveyors, army engineers and scientists. A distinguished group in the Sierra Nevada range, in Evolution basin, bear the celebrated names of Darwin, Huxley, Spencer, Wallace, Haeckel and Fish.

Cathedral Crumbles as Trucks Rumble By

Cologne.—Blame for the deterioration of the famous Cologne cathedral has been placed on the vibrations and concussion of the earth caused by modern industry. It is estimated that millions of marks will have to be spent to conserve this unique monument of Gothic architecture.

The cathedral, built of soft sandstone, was considered so solid that it would last for centuries. With Cologne's development as an industrial center and the completion of the huge railroad bridge spanning the Rhine near the cathedral, experts said, the crumbling of foundations and walls of the structure began.

Most of the damage, it is believed, was done during the war when army trains passed incessantly over the bridge to and from the west front. While normally 400 trains cross the bridge daily, an average of 1,000 rumbled across during the war. A popular subscription is being taken up for the restoration of the edifice and the Prussian government has voted 500,000 marks for this purpose.

San Francisco Policeman Gets Pay for Hunting

San Francisco.—San Francisco has a policeman who is the envy of all sinners. He is permitted not only to hunt in Golden Gate park, but he also gets paid for it and he finds hunting good.

Each year Patrolman Warren N. Phillips, who is the official exterminator of predatory animals in the park, takes around 100 for a year. 25 to 30 are coyotes, a coyote or two, some hawks and other undesirable of animal life who visit the city's playground to prey on the domesticated creatures of the park. They come from the Santa Forest—a densely wooded tract in the heart of San Francisco—and from the open spaces down the peninsula apparently attracted by the bright lights of the city at night time traffic.

Mountain Sinking

Switzerland, Switzerland.—News of a mountain 1,500 feet high, is sinking. It has gone down more than six inches in a year and predictions are being taken that it will sink a valley.

Have the Wrong Idea

Too many people think that opportunity is a chance to get money with out working it. As a rule they have another chance to think, but too often they still fail to think straight, and finally reach the conclusion that the world's against them.—Grit.

Los Angeles Makes First Spring Flight

Silhouetted against the setting sun is the U. S. dirigible "Los Angeles," photographed just after she had been attached to her mooring mast at Lakehurst, N. J., following the initial flight of the year.

WORK OF ULSTER RED CROSS APPRECIATED

The women of Kingston who respond so loyally to every appeal from the Red Cross for knitted garments, will appreciate the following letter. These caps were recently completed and shipped to Tupper Lake, in response to a request from National Headquarters that the Ulster County Chapter assume its quota of caps, which are needed by ex-service men, patients in Government Hospitals.

The American Red Cross, U. S. Veterans' Hospital, No. 95, Tupper Lake, N. Y.

April 16, 1926.

Mrs. C. W. Hasbrouck, Secretary American Red Cross,

293 Wall St., Kingston, N. Y.

My Dear Mrs. Hasbrouck:

The package containing forty-three caps arrived yesterday and I want to thank you very specially for these; they are such nice bright colors and this is such a welcome change from regulation grays and browns. As you probably know, these caps are in constant demand, and no one, whether in bed or up and about, considers his costume quite complete without a "beanie" to top him off. Please say "thank you" to all the members of the Chapter who had a share in this very much appreciated gift.

Very Sincerely Yours,

MISS MARY G. ELLETT,

Director, Red Cross Service.

PATAUKUNK.

Pataukunk, April 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Dunn are spending some time in New York city.

Miss Gertrude Van Wageningen spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Dunn and son motored up from New York Sunday and spent the day with Mr. Dunn's sister, Mrs. B. Carson. Charles Chenoweth is employed at Lake Minnewaska.

Joe Bessinger made a trip to New York on Monday by auto. Mrs. John Burger and daughter, Helen, called on Miss G. Van Wageningen, Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nelson spent Sunday out of town.

Most Sonful Trees

Elms are the most sonful trees we have. I always think so when I see one alone in a level meadowland. It springs up so spontaneously. It is so straight growing; and yet it reaches out dreamful arms all ways and they muse a little and bend from the joyous one up-springing trunk. Oh, yes, they are sonful.—Josephine Preston Peabody.

STOCK & CORDS

Natty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE FOHLED SKEE.

Today we present a small worm-eating marsupial living in the hills districts around Melbourne, Australia. The hunting expeditions of the skee are very interesting, as a whole herd of the beasts will start out at midnight to climb to the top of the hills, which they reach just before dawn. Lying on their backs, they start sliding, and the rumbling of their descent arouses the sleeping worms who poke their heads out of their holes just in time to catch the sharp edge of the skee's tail and zipper! off go their heads. The skee herd spends the rest of the day feasting on the remains.

The split almond tails of the skees are, when properly cured, highly prized by the natives as witch fobblers. The body is an ordinary peccan, the legs are cloves, and the head is a single peanut. The eyes are merely pointed on, but the ears and the tongue shown in the process of chop-licking are popcorn kernels. Metropolitan Newspaper Service. (Tomorrow—The Chipping Stidius.)

Find Animal Pests Not Unworthy Foes

Mountain lions, bobcats, grizzlies, wolves, coyotes and other killers slaughtered between twenty and thirty million dollars' worth of live stock last year on the western ranges. That is why the government maintains a band of men, pioneers at heart, who concentrate every effort, night and day, on their extermination. These men belong to the predatory animal division of the biological survey, and the stories they tell in monosyllables sound like old medieval tales of werewolves and ghost-tigers. Do animals think? Listen to their experiences with some of these four-legged desperadoes.

Stanley P. Young is the boss trapper of the hunters on Colorado's stock ranges, with the professional title of junior biologist.

"You asked if animals think," said Young in an interview. "Let me tell you how we have to go out after wolves."

"A wolf has a regular run. It is a circle often about fifty miles in circumference. He makes the rounds regularly. We study a killer wolf's habits sometimes for months. Then we make a trap set for him on this run at some key point. Can't poison a wolf. He's too wise.

"In setting traps for wolves we make two kinds of sets. Wolves have scent posts just like domestic dogs. We find the ground all scratched up around these. Sometimes we set traps at such points. To stir up the local wolf, get him all excited so he'll lose his head a bit, we often bring in the scent of some foreign wolf we have trapped. That makes the local wolf mad to find an intruder in his territory. He starts rarin' around and gets into a trap.

"Some of them are so cunning they will not get into a trap at a scent post. They just come there in something wrong and dodge the trap. Then we make what is called a blind set. "In making a blind set, the hunter waits until it is about time for the wolf to come by a point on his circle trail. There men set the blind out almost to the door, because they may have been studying that particular wolf for weeks. Then they select a place where the trail is narrow. They dig a pit and put the set trap in it. They handle the trap with gloves and keep all the dirt they dig on what is called a spring cloth. Everything in the way of foot-gear, clothing, trap and gloves has had the scent of man taken from it.—Everybody's Magazine.

Program for Spring Concert

The program for the spring concert of the Schubert Choral Club to be held in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, May 3, promises to be one of unusual interest.

The club will present Princess Te Ata, Indian singer and dancer, as the assisting artist. Te Ata, whose name means "the dawn," is the daughter of a Cherokee chief. She has been called the "Pawlova" of her race by Thurlow Lawrence, well known composer of Indian music.

The club program will be directed by Miss Virginia Loe Kamp of New York City, and Miss Ethel Usher, also of New York, will be the accompanist for both Princess Te Ata and the Schubert Club.

The program is as follows.

Part One.

The Bella of Youth Oley Speaks
Medley from the South, arranged by Harry Hale Pike.
Swing Low, Sweet Chariot

FARM STOCK

SILAGE VALUABLE AS CATTLE FEED

Farmers usually regard silage as a dairy necessity, but few of them realize how valuable it is when properly combined with other feeds in fattening steers.

Indiana experiment station gave some interesting facts about silage in this connection as part of their international show exhibit. They compared the economy and efficiency of a standard ration with and without silage.

The feed required to fatten a carload of 20 two-year-old steers amounted to 4.5 tons of cottonseed meal, 48 tons of silage, 752 bushels of corn, and five tons of clover hay.

The land required to grow this feed was 15 acres of corn grain, 5.4 acres of silage corn, and two and a half acres of clover hay. This was a total acreage of 22.9 acres. Without silage, it took 28 acres of farm-grown feed, made up of 19 acres of corn grain and nine acres of clover.

Feed to make each pound of gain amounted to 56 pounds of corn, 13 pounds of clover hay, 1.3 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 11.5 pounds of silage. The profit was reckoned along with hogs following the steers. For the car lot using silage the profit was $203, and for the car lot fed no silage the profit was $20.

Cottonseed meal increases the finish and selling value of steers, while the silage used in the ration cheapens the cost of production. Less land is required to produce feed for a car lot of steers when silage is fed.

Early Diagnosis of Hog Cholera Very Important

Early diagnosis is one of the most important steps in the control of hog cholera, which has developed on many farms in Minnesota this year. Responsibility of a proper diagnosis and the method of procedure to follow, lie with the veterinarian, who should be called as soon as the pigs appear to be sick.

Emphasizing the importance of a correct diagnosis, Dr. H. C. H. Kernkamp of the division of veterinary medicine, University of Minnesota, says that if hog cholera serum were to be used on swine suffering from some disease, other than cholera results would be discouraging.

"In outbreaks of cholera anti-cholera serum cannot be used too soon," he says. "Serum is not a cure, but it may be given in large doses to swine in the early stages of the disorder. Even if only a few hogs are saved, the serum will pay for itself."

Cattle Need Protein to Make Profitable Gains

A certain amount of protein is absolutely essential in cattle-feeding operations. Where alfalfa or clover hay is the sole roughage it is not necessary to use any protein feed, but where alfalfa or clover is fed in connection with other roughages, the addition of one pound of cottonseed meal per head per day will reduce the cost of gains materially.

If no alfalfa or other leguminous hay is fed, two pounds of cottonseed meal per head per day will produce gains considerably cheaper than in the cases where none is fed, according to Dr. C. W. McCampbell, head of animal husbandry work at the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Proper Feed Will Make Vigorous Litter of Pigs

The greater the number of pigs raised per sow the less the cost per pig. The unborn pig is built quite largely of protein, hence the necessity of feeding plenty of protein to the sow from breeding to farrowing time in order that she may produce a large, strong, thrifty, vigorous litter, say live stock authorities at the Kansas State Agricultural college. The brood sow should have either one-half pound of tankage, one pound of linseed oil meal, one pound of soy beans or one gallon of skim milk or butter-milk per day to furnish the needed protein, they advise.

Live Stock Hints

Young animals make the best use of feed.

The most effective method of riding cattle of lice is by dipping.

Do not feed moldy hay to horses if you wish to avoid serious ailments.

A beef cow carries more fat under her hide than a dairy cow, and fat is a most excellent insulator of heat.

Two severe taxes on pig growth are worms and lice. Cleanliness aids mightily in combating both.

Hog cholera ordinarily causes large losses to farmers during the fall and winter months. Vaccination is a sure preventive but must be done before the hogs get sick.

Too many pigs should not be put together. Even though some may be hurt, a larger number break up and become so weak that colds result from going out into the winter weather.

Report of YWCA Business Girls

Report of First Year's Doings of Business Girls' Club of Y. W. C. A. Officers Elected for Next Year.

A report of the first year's activities of the Business Girls' Club of the Y. W. C. A., and the election of officers for next year, were two of the main features of the Wednesday night supper held at the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday.

Following the supper the secretary, Miss Ethel T. Kline, gave the following interesting report of the year's activities:

Report of Business Girls' Club for year 1925-1926:

The Business Girls' Club held its first supper and business meeting, Wednesday evening, October 14. At this meeting, a nominating committee was appointed to secure officers for the year 1925-1926.

At the next Wednesday evening's supper, the following officers were unanimously elected: President, Catherine Salsman; vice-president, Dorothy Kennedy; secretary, Ethel Kline; treasurer, Gladys Hopper. During the evening, three of the girls who attended the Business Girls' Convention at Camp Marqua, gave very interesting reports. The girls who attended were: Jessie Goodsell, Gladys Hopper and Lillian Herdman.

At the Wednesday evening's supper following the election of officers, our president, Miss Salsman, appointed the following committees to serve: Social: Mrs. Gracia Millard, chairman; Gladys Hopper, Lena Kohler, Jean Castor, Annetta Wheeler, Bess Short and Harriet Misner. Service: Dorothy Kennedy, chairman; Ella Humphrey, Marguerite Myer, Hazel Dutton, Marie Hopper, Ruth Bell and Marjorie Zelle. Social Service: Ethel Salsman, chairman; Ruth Glendinning, Sylvia Mantivani, Dorothy Britchell, Margaret Willmott, Helen Schwab and Emily Hoystradt.

Membership—Carrie Herrmann, chairman; Elsie Boyce, Mildred Bruce, Mary Kyer, Alice Toole, Ruth Bell and Evelyn Dolson. Program—Jessie Goodsell, chairman; Mae Perkins, Alma Tyler, Lillian Herdman, Kathryn Millard, Ruth Scott and Helen Hulsebeck. Our speaker for the evening was Mrs. Clara Norton Reed, who spoke on "Amendments" and also showed the girls how to mark a ballot. The following week, Mrs. Cady talked to the girls on "What Part the Women Play in the Game of Life."

Miss Alice Burbank, who had just returned from four years of Y. W. C. A. work at Syria, talked to us another Wednesday evening. She gave a very interesting message about the Y. W. C. A. work in foreign countries.

During the month of December, Miss Ethel Cutler, National Y. W. C. A. Secretary, gave a series of four talks on "Comparing Gods of Many Religions."

On Saturday afternoon, December 19th, the Christmas Service Party was held for the poor children of the city. Games, gifts and refreshments comprised the afternoon's entertainment and the spirit of Christmas was brought into many little lives, who otherwise would not have been visited by Santa Claus.

On December 30th, the Club Girls held a dance at which time we invited our gentlemen friends. Although this dance was not so well attended, all those who were present helped to make the evening a success.

The first meeting of this year, we had as our guest and speaker, Dr. Mary Gage Day, who gave us a "Health" talk.

The girls furnished their own entertainment one Wednesday evening in the form of stunt night. This proved very amusing as well as entertaining for all the girls present.

Another evening, Miss Nance of the Home Bureau gave us an illustrated stereopticon talk on "Food Values."

During the Lenten suppers, we were very fortunate in having some very inspiring messages given by Doctors Boove, Seelye, Tolley and Wilkins.

After several of our suppers, considerable emergency sewing for the Hospital was given out to the girls, thus a great number of towels were made.

We were greatly enthused one Wednesday evening when a delegation from the Newburgh Y. W. C. A. visited our Club and told of their various activities.

One of the big successes of the year was our "Country Fair" from which the sum of $153.74 was realized. Much credit is due to Miss Alma Tyler, for the manner in which she went about with this big undertaking and also to the girls who helped in various ways.

During the recent "Y" Campaign, our Club took an active part. Aside from working on the drive, we contributed $100 toward the fund. Miss Salsman's team was presented with a silver loving cup from Admiral Higginson, for having the largest amount subscribed by a girl's team.

At our last meeting, the following girls were appointed on the nominating committee to secure officers for the coming year: Joan Castor, Maude Burger and Ruth Scott.

A committee was also appointed to have charge of plans for the coming conference. Miss Jessie Goodsell and Helen Schwab were appointed on this committee.

The past year has been a successful one for the Business Girls' Club. The suppers were enjoyed and greatly appreciated. Much credit is due to our "Supper Committee," which has been composed of women from the various churches. The girls have shown their contribution to the work and most of all, the following which has been presented at all times. The prospects for the coming year look very encouraging.

Respectfully submitted,
ETHEL T. KLINE, Secretary.

April 22, 1926.
Ready Elected Officers.
Officers for the coming year were unanimously elected following the report of the nominating committee, composed of Joan Castor, Maude Burger, Ruth Scott: President, Miss Jessie Goodsell; vice-president, Miss Dorothy Kennedy; secretary, Miss Harriet Misner; treasurer, Miss Ethel Salsman.

Last Supper.

The Wednesday night supper next week will be the last for this season, but that particular supper will be a special occasion, for Mrs. G. F. Rice, president of the Y. W. C. A. Board of Directors, and Mrs. Harry Walker, a director, will be back from the national conference of the Y. W. C. A. held in Milwaukee and will give their reports. Also girls will be chosen from the club as delegates to Business Girls' Conference at Camp Marqua in August, at next Wednesday's meeting. Any girls who find they can go are asked to communicate at once with either Miss Jessie Goodsell or Miss Helen Schwab.

Arouses Klan

The marriage of Miss Hazel Williams, mulatto, of Peekskill, N. Y., to Sidney Barrett, automobile man, brought forth so many ominous threats from persons claiming to be members of the Ku Klux Klan that the couple vanished from the city for their honeymoon.

"Diamond D" Line Gets Franchise.

Albany, April 30.—The Public Service Commission Thursday consented to the transfer of the Kingston-Highland, Highland-Marlborough and the Marlborough-Newburgh Shipyards bus certificates held by John A. DuBois to the "Diamond D" Bus Lines, Inc. Mr. DuBois will hold the majority of the stock of the corporation and will be the principal officer.

Would Save the Hawk

In some of the states there is a bounty on hawks. It is ill-judged legislation, not to call it by a harsher name. Nearly all of the American hawks are beneficial. There are only two members of the great hawk family which are almost always criminal, the red-tailed hawk and the bald eagle. These two birds of bad habit are the sharp-shinned and the Cooper's hawk. The goshawk also is a bad actor, but he is not abundant enough in the United States at any season to cause much alarm. All the other hawks should be allowed to live. They do good work every day.—Chicago Evening Post.

Boat and Shoe Beliefs

How many of us, no matter how we pretend to scorn such superstitions, would ask for trouble by placing a pair of boots or shoes upon a table, and how few would risk misfortune by cleaning a new pair of shoes before wearing them? In Scotland the belief still exists that to drop a pair of shoes before they have been worn is a sure portent of bad luck. Immunity can be bought, however, by burning the shoes or by burying them. To place new boots or shoes on a shelf higher than one's head is another harbinger of misfortune, according to a superstition which has prevailed in many parts of England for centuries.

Criminal's Washing Book

In tracing criminals, police have, in addition to finger prints and handwriting, what is called the "washing book." This comprises a register of all the laundry marks used in a particular district. Should at any time a smart crop up which does not appear in the police register it is photographed and sent round all the laundries until some one identifies it. Once the laundry which has lost the mark is discovered, it is an easy matter to discover the name and address of the person for whom the work had been done and so follow up the clue.

BROWER INTIMATES THAT HE STANDS FOR PEACE

New York, April 30.—With Tex Rickard and the New York State Athletic Commission scheduled to go to the court today on the question of whether Jack Dempsey must or must not fight Harry Wills, the second suggestion of a definite break within the commission's ranks came this morning. It came when George E. Brower, third member of the board, intimated that he stood for peace.

If not actually favorable to Rickard's cause, this attitude at least was more or less adverse to the plan of James A. Farley commission chairman, who has declared for stripping the promoter of his local holdings if he persists in his alleged purpose of matching Dempsey with Gene Tunney.

The writer asked Brower what his attitude would be when the board took up the heavyweight controversy with Rickard today, next week or whenever the warring principals get around to it. His reply was that he preferred to wait until he could talk it over.

With whom was the natural question. With Rickard, was the unexpected reply.

Last Night's Fight.

At Worcester, Mass.—Bert Brown, Australian lightweight, defeated Newport Johnny Brown, 10 rounds.

At Lowell, Mass.—Eliacur Hious, Montreal, knocked out Archie Skinner, Cambridge, Mass., in the sixth of a scheduled ten round bout.

White House Innovations

Abigail Powers Fillmore, wife of the thirteenth President of the United States, contributed considerably to the comfort of "first ladies" who followed her. It was she who, possessed of great refinement and gracious manners, installed the first bathtub and kitchen range in the White House. The range caused a bitter controversy, as the colored cook who had reigned 30 years using an open fire, would have none of it. Mrs. Fillmore taught her how to use the range.

Tagging Major League Bases

The Giants lost to the Braves, 4 to 2, and are now only half a game in front of the Robins and Reds.

A triple by Felix broke up a pretty pitching duel between Petty and Knight, Brooklyn beating the Phillies 3 to 1. Petty turned in his fourth straight win and Fournier got his fourth homer of the season getting the jump on the circuit clouters of both leagues.

The Reds went on their annual hitting spree and scuttled the Pirates, 16 to 9, making ten runs in one inning. Cincinnati polished off five Pittsburgh pitchers and Manager McKeehan was forced to use everybody on the club except the bat boy's great uncle.

The Cubs moved out St. Louis, 6 to 5, when Duster Mails, pitching for the Cards, threw away the game. Other St. Louis errors were costly.

The Senators outbatted the Yankees, but the Huguenots piled up such a big lead off Joe Bush that later Washington rallies fell short. Goslin and Eluge checked in with four hits apiece. Score: Yankees 8, Washington 5.

The Yankees gained clear title to first place when the Indians lost to the White Sox, 7 to 3.

Tiring of the vagaries of flaming youth, Connie Mack pinned his faith on old Jack Quinn. The veteran obliged by blanking the Red Sox 4 to 0.

Changes in the line-up startled the Browns into beating Detroit, 3 to 2. Ty Cobb got his first homer of the season.

HAVE a Gas Stove and a Gas Plant —All in One!

NOW you can have the stove you've so often wished for—a stove that gives you all the conveniences and comforts of a city gas range. It's the Coleman Cooker—a gas range and gas plant all in one! We have them.

Coleman Cookers

Make their own Gas

The Coleman gives you full cooking heat in 60 seconds! The flame is intensely hot—a clean, blue flame without smoke or soot. Boils 2 quarts of water or bakes light, flaky, golden-brown biscuits in 4 to 6 minutes. Keeps your kitchen clean and cool.

Only 2 cents worth of fuel cooks the average meal on the Coleman. Our customers say they never saw such a wonderful stove—so safe, handy and clean. Fuel is common water gas—under pressure. Coleman Cookers are made in various sizes and models to fit every need and every purse. Stop in and see them!

Vouching is the process of cutting coupons used with slices of soap and easily used flushed down with soap to save money made in the kitchen to be covered. It was first used in the reign of William and Mary, in the last decade of the seventeenth century. Until that time furniture had been made of solid wood.

Beauty Strips
The women of Paraguay have marks on their faces like army stripes, to denote rank. The pigment used consists of ashes mixed with blood, while the instrument is a sharp stone. If a woman being betrothed cries out with pain she is told that she is a disgrace to her family and unworthy of a husband.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

GRAPE GRAFTING
DIFFICULT TASK

There has been considerable interest shown in the last few years about the grafting of the grapevine and, regardless of the fact that men of science have taken the lead, there seems to be a lack of knowledge all along the line. In the first place the work belongs to professionals or well-trained amateurs, writes Charles Boykin of Indiana in the Rural New Yorker. The business man or common farmer cannot make it go. Any of the common methods of graftage is practical, but it takes a fundamental knowledge of the plant to make a success. The graft will grow from the common split graft made about the first of April, just below the ground level without any wax or tying material. The care of the vine consists in keeping the roots off the scion, and not letting any sprouts from the roots grow. The main point in consideration is to protect the union from freezes in the winter. To do so, clear the soil from union about the first of September. A process of hardening then follows, which protects the vine during the winter. When winter sets in, just before Thanksgiving, cover the plant with about eight inches of soil. The first year is the fundamental point to consider. Afterward, if it is an American grape, there is no extra care. But if you are grafting the Vinifera (California grape) the plant must be protected each winter in the eastern states.

There are several methods of graftage. The split graft is good on plants one or more years old. On younger vines inching is one of the best methods, but the whip graft or wire graft on cuttings of the right stock will prove to be, in the long run, the most successful. Stocks most adaptable to most soils are the Riparia X. Rupestris 3309 and 3306 and Rupestris St. George. The adaptability of the stock must be understood. Your soil will govern that. Therefore, I say that a professional should take care of the graftage, just the same as the man who propagates your other fruit. An American grape grafted on the proper root will produce from one-third to one-half more grapes than on its own roots.

The Vinifera (California grape) will not grow well in the eastern states because of the phylloxera, an insect that infests the roots of the Vinifera grape. To protect it the grape must be grafted. In the near future I believe that the Vinifera will be grown in eastern America the same as other grapes.

How Much and When to Prune the Apple Trees

How much to prune and in what way to prune apples are questions which will soon occupy the thoughts of many fruit growers. Horticulturists at the New York state experiment station at Geneva have conducted experiments with apples for a number of years and have accumulated information on this subject, much of which is now available in a station bulletin which may be had free of charge for the asking.

The pruning tests were made with Baldwin, Golden, Esopus, Hubbardston, McIntosh, Spr. Greening, Rome, and King, all good standard varieties. The comparison of little and much pruning was made with trees all banded about two feet above the ground when set out in the orchard. After the tree is started properly, little pruning will later produce a tree with a larger head, having a greater bearing area, with less effort on the part of the orchardist than will much pruning, say the station specialists.

Top and Double-Worked Fruit Trees Explained

It makes no difference whether a particular variety of fruit is grafted on another variety or if grafted on a common roadside tree. The variety represented by the scion will still remain the same and will produce the same kind of fruit. Of course there will be some difference in the way the grafts grow, as naturally they obtain all their food supply from the tree on which they are grafted and their growth thus depends upon the vigor and thriftiness of this stock.

When any variety is grafted on another variety it is called a double-worked or top-worked tree. However, the term "double-worked tree" is usually applied to one which has been double-worked in the nursery, so that what remains of the first variety is only the portion of the trunk between the graft just beneath the surface of the ground and the point above the ground where the second variety is added.

Two Pickings of Apples

Many careful orchardists are of the opinion that it pays well to make two pickings of certain varieties of winter apples. Practically every one who has tried it agrees that this is true in the case of the Orin. As soon as approximately half of the Orins are large enough and mature enough to pick, they are taken off and the remainder are not harvested until they have matured better and become larger.

SOMETHING TO EAT

A most delightful salad combination is pineapple and tomato.

Tomato and Pineapple Salad.
—Peel medium-
sized ripe tomatoes, removing a slice from the top of each, and take out the seeds and pulp. Sprinkle

the inside of the tomato cup with salt and invert; let stand a half-hour.
Fill the tomatoes with fresh pineapple cut into fine bits, or shredded, and a few nuts, using two-thirds of a cupful of pineapple to one-third of a cupful of nut meats. Mix with a rich mayonnaise dressing and serve on a bed of lettuce.

Stew Chicken With Onions.—Roast
more the breasts and the second bones from two chickens. Cook in water to cover with one dozen small onions, until tender. Remove the chicken, reduce the stock to one and one-half cups, by boiling; drain the onions from the stock. Melt three tablespoonsful of butter, add four tablespoonsful of flour and the stock, bring to the boiling point, add one-half cupful of heavy cream, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add the onions and chicken and bring to the boiling point.

When roasting time comes try:
Roast Leg of Venison.—Lay a bed of onions in cold water with one fourth teaspoonful of ginger, one mixed onion, six cloves and ten pepper corns. Turn once and leave two days. Remove from the water, wipe, season well, dredge with flour and roast as usual.

HOWE ABOUT—

By ED HOWE

(Copyright by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

In reading a magazine I ran across a sentence which did me good; I hope you may gain benefit from it, also.
The writer was a convict grumbling at decent people, and said: "Disorderly living does more injury to a community than the few crimes which earn for their perpetrators long terms of penal servitude."

There is much in the statement;
probably the convict stole it from a respectable source, since convicts are not fair and accurate thinkers.

Every day, in my walks I pass a lonely house where lives a martyr woman. In the yard stands an old wagon, but there are no horses in the tumble-down stable. Everywhere are signs of neglect. A son is foolish, and annoys the neighbors a good deal. Occasionally he has a fit in the yard,
when we see a bedraggled, unhappy woman hurry out, and take him inside. The husband and father, we hear, is gone most of the time. Looking for work, and rarely finds it. Two sons are with the father. The mother lives on what the husband sends her, and it is safe to say he doesn't send much.
I don't care to do anything for the African heathen, but should like to do something for this martyr woman, and do not know how to go about it.

In India the fact is as plain as the nose on a man's face that there is too much religion. And this religion has become so complicated, because of centuries of quarrelling about it, that now no one understands it; if it has a moment of grace so one knows how to take advantage of it. When in that country a Brahmin priest, who acted as my guide, confessed that he did not understand his own religion and expressed the belief that no one did.

American politics has become as complicated and unworkable as the religion of the Hindus. In our constitution we have a greater tax pay politicians exact a greater tax and create more disturbance than religion does in India. There are no ceremonies in the Hindu religion more important than the ceremonies in our politics. Our editors and writers pay more meaningless and foolish tribute about liberty, justice, etc., than the Hindus pay about their Joss Man.
We are neglecting simple, important,
true things as regularly as the Hindus, and pay an equally great price for talk about Joss Man studied with newness.

Baked Mushrooms with Mustard Sauce
Put some very large mushrooms, cut off stems. Butter a shallow pudding dish and put into dish a layer of mushrooms (with their stems upward). Into each mushroom pour a few drops of melted butter, half teaspoonful French's Prepared Mustard. (Do not put more than two layers into a pudding dish.) Bake in tightly covered dish in a quick oven till the mushrooms become tender. Take only twenty minutes. Remove cover, pour melted butter over mushrooms; serve very hot in dish in which they were baked.

Send four cents in stamps to Emily Bleeker, 1602 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., and you will be mailed a copy of "Made Dishes, Salads and Savories", containing this and many other recipes.

Get Thin With Gum Says Science

Fat people may discard starvation diets and other inconvenient reducing methods. New York's fashionable stout women have found an easier way to get thin. Many have reported reductions of several pounds a week. The treatment consists of taking a certain harmless, medicinal ingredient, purely vegetable, discovered by science, which dissolves the fat cells. It contains no thyroid or dangerous drugs. This ingredient acts quickest when chewed thoroughly. So it is embodied in a deliciously flavored fat-reducing chewing gum called "Stends." Local druggists have all stocked this gum so that everyone can now follow Fifth Avenue's lead and "Stenderize" with Stends.

Naked Truth

"This is a cynical world, when viewed through the eyes of the modern child," said David Starr Jordan. "Children have a way of presenting the truth about their elders with ghastly clarity."
"Quite recently, when I boarded a train in San Francisco, a family group took the two seats in front of me. They spent several minutes in adjusting themselves but at last were settled. At this moment the little girl of the family stuck her head out the window and said to a group of friends on the platform:
"We'll be gone in a minute and then you can talk about us and we'll talk about you."

Jutland in History

Jutland, a part of the kingdom of Denmark, was the home of the ancient Jutes, a Teutonic people akin to the Saxons. In early times many Jutes, like the Saxons, crossed to England and settled in the southern part of the island. It was off the coast of Jutland that on May 31, 1916, was fought the principal naval battle of the World war, resulting in the German high seas fleet being compelled to flee back to its protected base. This great fleet did not come out again until it came to surrender according to the terms of the armistice of November 11, 1918.

A Bow Is Much Nicer Than a Chip on One's Shoulder so With All the Flutter and Movement in Dress the Summer Promises to Be Gay.

When in doubt add a bow seems to be the new rule in the dress up game this season. So much ribbon has not been in evidence for many months and there seems to be the greatest sort of let-up as to its distribution. The shoulder bow is a pleasing change from the shoulder bouquet, and when it introduces a vivid contrast is of course of great decorative value.

Bright love bird green, candy pink or rose or any brilliant tone on black or white finds many sponsors. While the black evening dress is undoubtedly here it is often the more assured of a welcome when it brings a bit of color in its wake, by some other means especially than in the rather usual corsage.

A Bow on One's Shoulder Is Among the Many Bows Approved.

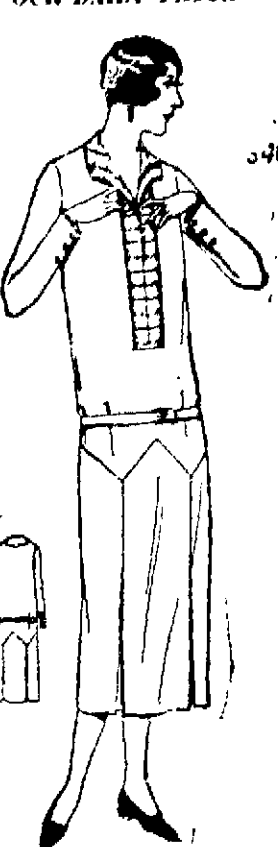

A Hand Painted Parasol Is a New Coquetry of the Moment.

Every indication points to a summer of delightful surprises. One is going to have effective parasols to carry with either sports clothes or formal ones and the only point of similarity is that they must both have rather stubby handles and carry out the message the costume is designed to convey. Right after the war, or during it, parasols were scrapped as unessentials, but now pre-war gaieties are revived and pre-war fashions given another lease of life, or rather modern adaptations of the sort of thing we frivoleed in before the war. Gay cretunes, printed or hand painted, silks, laces and eyelet embroidery sum up the parasol situation with the important addition of taffeta.

Royalty on Show

The elaborate pomp that always attended France's former royal families is shown in "Versailles: Its Life and History," by Cecelia Hill. Devised to impress their subjects, it extended even to their meals, and the royal appetites received a publicity that became offensive. In the Salon du Grand Convent, a long room, connected with the king's dining-room by a small door and narrow passage, "the queens of France," said Miss Hill, "ate their meals in incredible pomp, each dish, each drink being attended with almost as much ritual as the king's, and watched too by the public, anybody who was decently dressed being admitted to watch royalty eat. Energetic people did the round; watched the king as he ate his soup, were in time to see the queen eat entrees and hurried to the other side of the palace to gaze at princesses with dessert. Marie Antoinette, the bird in the gilded cage, found this custom so intolerable that she abolished it. But then, Marie Antoinette was a revolutionary."

Needs Human Skill

All the best china is still made on a potter's wheel and requires the skill of the human hand to give it its desired shape. After the potter places the lump of kneaded clay on his rapidly spinning wheel, he shapes it into a cup, saucer or plate with his fingers. Handles and other attachments are made separately and placed on the dish forms while the clay is still soft. From the potter's wheel the formed dishes go to the gas furnace for the first rough firing. They must have even heat and must not be placed so they will adhere to each other. The firing process lasts about three days. Three more days are required for the dishes to cool. This cooling off must take place slowly or the dishes crack.

Two Killed in Airplane Crash

Jacksonville, Fla., April 30.—William D. Willis, 24-year-old white man, Dallas, Texas, and Beattie Coleman, 26, of Chicago, said to be the only two aviators in the world, were killed this morning in an exhibition airplane flight west of the city when their plane took a 3,500-foot nose dive to the ground.
The aviator fell out of the plane. Willis, the pilot, stayed with it as the machine crashed down into a tree. A spectator is said to have lighted a match near the gasoline tank of the plane, setting it ablaze and almost cremating the body of Willis.

and Commercial

New York, April 30.—Stocks of the Standard and independent oil companies were the center of speculative interest in the stock market today.

While merger prospects furnished the driving power behind the advance in a number of the prominent petroleum stocks, Wall Street was reminded that both the industry as a whole and the financial position of the leading companies is the most favorable in the whole post-war period.

A 9-point break in the preferred stock of American Woolen Company was the outstanding weak spot in the industrial list. The decline reflected the uncertainty in the financial district relative to the maintenance of the 7 per cent dividend now paid on that stock, in view of the unsettled textile markets. The common stock also broke 4 1/2 points to 24 1/2.

The motors were more active than either the rails or utilities. Pools in National Dairy Products, electric refrigeration and other specialties whipped up prices 2 to 4 points in occasional spurts of activity.

The copper stocks formed up in the late trading, with American Smelting and Anaconda leading the advance. Some of the tire and rubber stocks sold slightly higher on the prospect of a more active spring and summer trade. Shipping stocks were again unsettled.

Accused Boys Are Captured

Albert DeShon and Robert Sam-bursky Plead Not Guilty to Killing Policeman—Captured in Boston Lodging House.

Boston, April 30.—Shackled and heavily guarded, Albert DeShon and Robert Sambursky, seventeen year-old boys accused in connection with the brutal slaying of Patrolman Frank J. Comeau, were arraigned in Suffolk County Criminal Court today on an indictment warrant charging first degree murder.

Though counsel the lads pleaded not guilty and were held without bail for trial.

Led through crowds in the court house, the youths were taken to Charles Street Jail where there was a pathetic scene as relatives met the pair.

Following the arrest in Lynn of Stanley Toothaker, a third boy, DeShon and Sambursky had been hunted like wolves along the Charles River but they were captured in a lodging house in the shadow of the East Boston police station.

Before the arraignment crowds had stormed the Fields Corner Police Station in a vain hope of seeing the lads.

Here, according to police, is DeShon's confession:

"Sure! I did it. I didn't know he was a policeman. I thought he was a friend or something because he didn't wear any uniform. When he got asking questions about the license and registration and finally I covered him with my gun. I had it in my coat pocket. He said, 'Kid, put that damned little thing down, or I'll knock it down.' He raised his gun. We wrestled, and my gun went off. He threw up his hands and fell backwards. All he had to say was 'Oh, like a groan.' I dropped my gun and picked up his gun, and ran away. All the time that it was going on Stables and Sam (Sambursky) kept yelling, 'break away and run!'"

DeShon admitted participating in the holdup of the Dorchester drug store last Friday night, and said that was where he had received a wound in the right wrist.

DeShon and Sambursky were captured in an East Boston lodging house while a police posse combed the Medford Woods.

Society Notes

Miss A. Margaret Myer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Myer, and Reynolds B. Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Carr, were quietly married this afternoon by the Rev. E. M. H. Knapp, rector of St. John's Church. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Carr will reside at No. 172 TenBroeck avenue.

Confirmation at St. John's Church

On Sunday, May 2, the Rt. Rev. Herbert Shipman, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of New York, will administer the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation and preach at the morning service in St. John's Church. The service is at 10:45. The following persons are to be confirmed: Richard Johnston Cole, Edna May DeGraft, Ethel Hild Ellsworth, Edna Elizabeth Hall, Arthur Wellington Hazenbush, Eleanor Lillian Herbert, George Thurber Provost, Blanche Helena Robinson, Grace Mildred Simmons, Edna Althea Stout, Irma Elizabeth Wiebe, Hilda Eleanor Williams.

Bishop Shipman, who has been ill for some time and unable to perform his arduous duties as assistant bishop in this busy diocese, has recovered his health and is again visiting the parishes in this part of the diocese. A cordial invitation is extended to the people of Kingston to attend service on Sunday morning. The afternoon service will be omitted.

PORT EWN.

Port Ewen, April 30.—Miss Leona DuBois has had three card parties at her home on Stout avenue during this month. The first pinocle was played, the second bridge and the last one Wednesday evening five hundred was played. The parties have been a decided success both socially and financially and Miss DuBois wishes to thank all who helped make them so. The proceeds of the parties were for the benefit of the Port Ewen Library.

There was a large crowd at the poverty dance last evening. Every one had a jolly good time.

The three act play "Sophron's Wedding" will be given in the assembly room of the Methodist Church this evening at 8 o'clock. This is a real play two hours long and very entertaining. This play is given under the auspices of the Ewen Ready Club. Proceeds for the benefit of the Ewen Ready Club and the Ewen League. Ice cream on sale at the close of the entertainment.

Removal of Lanes of Racing

"One of the lessons of history," writes Oliver Scribner in T. P.'s and C. O.'s Weekly, "is that the spirit of man never changes. The passion for racing is as old as the human race. The rivalry of the first champions, distinguished by their racing names, need to lead to early success stories. 'All Home Today,' writes Scribner, 'is the dream. A year's training upon our feet tells us that even has been for him. But Rome would be as old and damaged as when the clouds were rain-cast in the dust of Rome.' The glorious Emperor Caligula, who was himself a shamelessly unscrupulous gambler for the Greeks taking their bets in the circus for the following day's performance."

Cabinet Approves Debt Settlement

Comment of Majority of Newspapers in Paris is Caustic—Ratification of Agreement by Deputies Will Mean a Fight.

Paris, April 30.—The French cabinet met today and definitely approved the debt settlement reached in Washington.

The cabinet studied the terms of the agreement which Ambassador Berenger signed, and though it is reported that there was some criticism of it, it was learned that the cabinet gave its approval to the accord.

"We are issuing a communique this evening, giving the complete details of the accord," said Finance Minister Perot.

"So far, the matter has been presented as though France had made all of the sacrifices. We desire to state the entire position."

Government officials admitted that ratification of the agreement by the chamber of deputies would undoubtedly mean a fight, but they expressed the hope that they would be able to force the ratifying vote successfully.

The government has one great advantage in its efforts to secure ratification of the agreement by the chamber, and that is time in which to marshal its forces. The chamber is now adjourned for a month, giving the government four weeks in which to create a favorable atmosphere for the presentation of the accord.

The comment of the majority of the newspapers in Paris was caustic. "Such figures would certainly have been called astronomical by the Anglo-Saxon Press if imposed upon vanquished Germany," The Nationalist Organ, Gaulois, said. "No person of good sense on either side of the Atlantic can believe that such a Draconian agreement will be supported by six generations of Frenchmen."

L'Action Francaise, The Royalist Newspaper, published the reports under a headline reading, "agreement reached—and what an agreement!"

The Paris Midi declares that the debt settlement came as a complete surprise to the French Cabinet, and something of the shock. Yesterday afternoon the government cabinet Ambassador Berenger, requesting certain explanations, before he signed the agreement before he received this cable, the newspaper states.

GORILLA CALLED WISEST OF APES

Intellectually Easily Leader of the Species.

Of all the man-like apes which have been studied by psychologists, the gorilla probably is the leader intellectually. This is indicated by a series of tests recently completed on a young female gorilla by Dr. Robert M. Yerkes, professor of psychology at Yale university.

Doctor Yerkes recently returned from Jacksonville, Fla., where he spent six weeks testing the animal, which belongs to Benjamin Burbridge, Mr. Burbridge, an experienced hunter, captured the gorilla single handed in the forests of the Belgian Congo. On his last trip to Africa he caught four, but two died in Africa; one, which was taken to Belgium, has since died, and the other is Congo, the one that was studied by Doctor Yerkes. Probably it is the only example of its species, the mountain gorilla, that has ever been brought to the United States.

The chimpanzee, the most familiar anthropoid ape, has been the subject of many psychological inquiries. The Yale Institute of psychology has several chimpanzees in its "primate laboratory," on which tests are being conducted, but, on account of the scarcity of specimens, the gorilla has never before been studied experimentally.

"One's first impression is that the chimpanzee is the more intelligent," said Doctor Yerkes, "but that is probably due to the temperamental differences of the two animals. The chimpanzee is the more emotional and impulsive; the gorilla is the more deliberate, and worked calmly and with better judgment, and I should expect that the gorilla would go further in the long run. I was able to work with Congo for hours at a time, and she stuck to her tasks. A chimpanzee by comparison tires quickly."

The animal weighs about sixty-five pounds, Doctor Yerkes stated, and is perhaps five years old. Although their average span of life is not certainly known, they probably attain the age of thirty or forty years. Congo displays great strength, for "when she tugged at me I felt as if something would break," he said. When tested with a spring balance, she pulled

EXAGGERATION HAS ITS PROPER PLACE

Simple Truth Not Always Convincing.

No man has sufficient ability to comprehend or even to envision the whole body of truth. And if the world contained a man of such ability, it isn't at all probable that he would be able to reveal the whole truth to those about him.

Each man sees just so much of the truth as he is able to comprehend. Let us suppose this to be one-tenth of the truth. Having seen this small part of the truth, he is eager to share his vision with his fellows.

At once two great difficulties appear in the way. The man hasn't the knack of reducing his vision to words that are sufficiently eloquent to tell the whole of his story. And his listeners haven't the ability to absorb all of the little he offers them.

The result is that the first man's one-tenth truth is reduced to something less than one-half of 1 per cent of the whole by the time it is established in the minds of those who hear him.

The limitations of speaker and listener are so obvious and so universally acknowledged that men have found it necessary to deal in untruth in order to reveal what is true.

You will hear it said that a simple statement of fact is more impressive than any exaggeration. This is not true, except among scientists and persons of unusual intelligence. The average mind is impressed only by superlatives.

One ordinary person will say to another: "It was the funniest thing I ever saw. I nearly died laughing." This isn't the truth, but it serves. The hearer understands that the show was funny. But the ordinary person could not have revealed the truth to his hearer by saying: "It was an amusing show."

Those who get a living by proselytizing or by denouncing seldom confine themselves to the simple truth. If they did they never would win a convert or persuade anybody to doubt. They multiply the truth by six simply because they know that the mind of the reader or listener, having little capacity, will divide it by six.

Ship Famed in History

The Bon Homme Richard was a famous warship, originally a merchantman called the Duras and rechristened by Paul Jones in honor of Benjamin Franklin. She mounted forty-two guns, and while cruising in the English channel (September, 1779) encountered the British frigate Serapis, carrying fifty guns. A battle ensued, lasting nearly three hours, and terminating in the surrender of the English vessel. During the entire engagement, the ships were in close proximity, and toward the end of the conflict, in actual contact. Jones was afterward received in France with great honor, the king presenting him with a sword and the cross of the Order of Military Merit. The American congress gave him a vote of thanks, and caused a gold medal to be struck and presented to him.

Sweden Birthplace of Early American Artist

Gustavus Hesselius has been called "the first painter of recognized merit known to have practiced his art in this country," but he was not an American by birth. He was born in Folkearna, Sweden, in the province of Delecarlia, in 1682. He came to America in 1711, to the Swedish colony on the Delaware river, landing at Christina—now Wilmington, Delaware. He soon went to Philadelphia, where he made his home and where he died May 29, 1755.

On September 8, 1721, Hesselius received the first public art commission known to have been given in this country, "to draw ye history of our Blessed Saviour and ye twelve apostles at ye last supper" for the altar of St. Barnabas' church in Queen Anne parish, Maryland. The contract was fulfilled, but the church was destroyed in 1773 and the painting with it. A number of portraits by him survive, however, and are said to be "of decided merit."

Hesselius' son John, born in Philadelphia in 1728, was also a portrait painter, and was the instructor of Charles Willson Peale, who painted the earliest original portrait of General Washington which exists.

Flavor of Food Not Affected by Years

Not many people have eaten, and enjoyed, a cake fifty years old, as was the case at a golden wedding banquet at Hollywood, but the record for ancient fare probably belongs to the Brussels antiquary who a few years ago invited some of his colleagues to a remarkable feast.

The bread at the Brussels banquet was made from wheat found in one of the Pyramids, believed to have been there three thousand years, and it was buttered with butter made in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Wine was served centuries old, recovered from a vault in Corinth, and included in the menu were apples 1,800 years old, discovered among the ruins of Pompeii.

A few years ago some members of the Zoological society of Ireland sampled eggs brought from China fifty years previously, which they declared to be quite good and of a delicate flavor—in parts.
